Margaret Goes to Windsor

With Queen For Week-End

LONDON (UP) — Princess Margaret went back to Windsor Castle tonight to join her sister, the Queen, for a family week-end that may result in a decision on her romance with Peter Townsend.

The Windsor get-together will give Margaret her first chance to discuss Townsend privately with Queen Elizabeth since she started dating the handsome divorced air hero publicly nine days ago.

Only last night, the princess met with Townsend until 1 o'clock in the morning at the home of a friend in London.

This evening, the 41-year-old Townsend called on the princess at Clarence House before she left for Windsor Castle.

Margaret has seen the handsome group captain steadily for more than a week. Each succeeding date increased the belief they will marry.

ANNOUNCEMENT TUESDAY?

It was generally speculated that next Tuesday, when Parliament reconvenes, would be the most likely day for an announcement on the romance.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh went to Windsor Castle earlier today leaving Margaret behind to inaugurate a new church community centre on London's east side.

MP WANTS CABINET ACTION

'Public Fed Up With Guesses on Romance'

LONDON (AP) — Lt.-Col. Marcus Lipton, Labor member of Parliament, today demanded that the government put an end to the Princess Margaret-Peter Townsend guessing game.

"The public," Lipton said in an interview, "is getting fed up with this long drawn out business."

"Apparently they love one another and if someone is holding up a marriage, then let him say so. It may be the Church, or somebody else. But anyhow, let's stop all this guessing."

When Parliament reassembles Tuesday, Lipton is going to ask Prime Minister Eden "whether he will introduce legislation to repeal or amend the Royal Marriage Act of 1722."

"The present government says it believes in freedom from controls. If it does, then it should abolish the out of date controls still exercised by the Royal Marriage Act."

The act forbids any member of the Royal Family under 25 years old from marrying without the sovereign's permission. After 25, the Royal Family member must give a year's notice to Parliament. Should Parliament disapprove, any marriage would be null and void.

"Princess Margaret was 25 last August."

The Boston heart specialist told a press conference that the present goal is for the president to fly east somewhere between Nov. 5 and Nov. 12 for a period of convalescence at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

Saar Battens Down For Crucial Vote

(From UP and AP Dispatches)

SAARBRUECKEN — The troubled Saar sealed off its frontiers to the outside world today and mobilized its entire police force to guard against disorders in Monday's crucial referendum.

Leaders of both factions favoring and opposing the proposed internationalization of the coal and steel rich territory came out with final passionate appeals to voters this morning.

Border guards slammed down frontier barriers at noon (7 a.m. EDT) even as the final campaign appeals were being made. The barriers will stay down until Monday morning.

The voters, after three months of incessant campaign oratory, will write simply "ja" or "nein" on their ballots. But the result will determine the fate of a proposal by the seven-power Western European Union to "Europeanize" this little territory tucked in between France and Germany.

If the majority vote is yes, the Saar will become the first embodiment of a united Europe — a tiny national state with a population of 950,000 in the industrial heart of western Europe.

The police inquiry was adjourned Oct. 12 for an "indefinite period" awaiting RCMP investigators' report, after 32 sittings since its inception three months ago.

CHEST TOTAL TODAY $120,153.71

Extension of the Community Chest Campaign, originally scheduled to close at midnight tonight was announced today by campaign officials, as totals received to noon today were almost $12,000 less than for the same period last year. In 1954, $132,107.64 had been contributed. However, when canvassers complete computing returns, the situation is expected to be satisfactory.

Welsh Soccer Team Upsets England 2-1

LONDON (Reuters) — An underdog Welsh team, playing with tremendous drive, today downed favored England 2-1 in an international soccer match.

In English League play, Blackpool, without Stanley Matthews who was playing in the international match, fell from the First Division lead as they lost to Sheffield United 2-1.

Cashier Faints After Hold-Up In VI Coach Lines

A fleet gunman, taking advantage of noon-hour crowds, today robbed the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. ticket office of at least $250.

At press time, the bandit was still at large.

The holdup occurred just before 12.30.

He fitted the description of the gunman who robbed the Empress Hotel on Oct. 11.

Miss Joan Griston, ticket seller, said the hold-up man worked very quietly and appeared to be holding a gun under his coat.

"Hand over the money," were the first words spoken by the swarthy complexioned robber.

Miss Griston told Times reporters: "He thrust a paper bag at me and I filled it with the bills from the cash drawer."

"I tried to give him just the ones and twos, but he barked 'Give me it all.'"

Miss Griston fainted right after the hold-up.

"It was a terrible shock," she said with tears of fright glistening in her eyes.

The gunman grabbed the bag and left—losing himself in the crowded district.

A newsstand operator, Mrs. Lyl Stewart, 1329 George, in the bus stand, directly opposite the ticket office, said she had just stepped out when the hold-up occurred.

"I don't think I was out for more than three minutes. When I came back it was all over."

Several people sitting in the waiting room didn't notice the hold-up.

Dorothy Jossel, in information booth five feet away, didn't know anything was wrong until Miss Griston collapsed, and fainted, after the bandit got the money and left.

Witnesses gave this description of the gunman: He was wearing colored glasses, brown jacket, khaki bone-dry-type cap. He had dark hair and a swarthy complexion. He had a slim build.

His age was estimated at between 25 and 30 years.

His height is five feet eight to 10 inches.

A Coach Lines worker said she saw the same man loitering around the depot Friday.

Police have launched a city-wide search and off-duty detectives have been called back.

Outside police departments are maintaining a strict watch on roads leading from the city.

B.C. Employees Demand Probe Royal Commission Sought On Bargaining Rights

B.C. civil servants today asked for appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate bargaining procedure for provincial government employees.

Delegates attending the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention here passed a resolution calling on the cabinet to appoint a royal commissioner.

They said a commission should "investigate the unsatisfactory procedure in effect for government employees with the view to establishing a regulated bargaining procedure."

The resolution said civil servants, through their recognized bargaining agent, the BCGEA, have "unsuccessfully striven to gain a form of arbitration."

REFUSAL

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has given a categorical "no" to every former request for arbitration procedure.

"This may be going through the back door, asking for a new approach," said one delegate.

Dennis Heinekey of Victoria said previous demands had called for "arbitration or nothing. We don't believe we can get arbitration."

"It's a matter of—do we want to continue to batter our heads against the wall, or try something with a hope of success?" Delegates did not elaborate on what was meant by "regulated bargaining procedure."

At present civil servants' final appeal on wage demands is to the provincial cabinet, which sets the wages.

In other convention business, Carl Hauck, New Westminster, was defeated in a bid for a fifth term as association president.

J. F. Christian, Vancouver, won on the first ballot.

J. F. Murrell, Chilliwack, was re-elected first vice-president, and Miss Joan Gover, Victoria, and Miss Joan Gover, Victoria, (Continued on Page 28)

GROWTH IN 20 LIBERAL YEARS

Canada Now Industrial Giant Leader of 'Middle' Nations

BY JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—Canada developed from a relatively unimportant voice in world councils to a leader of the so-called "middle" nations during 20 years of Liberal government. At the same time, it grew into an industrial giant.

However, even the Liberals don't claim all the credit for this country's tremendous expansion in the last two decades. Much of it was aided by events which occurred outside Canada and the progress would have been achieved under any administration.

The Liberals were swept into office in October, 1935, near the end of a world-wide depression. They immediately began laying the foundation for what later proved to be a social and economic upheaval.

On Sunday they will have been in office 20 straight years, by far the longest stretch for a federal government in Canada.

NO SLACKENING
In 1935 Canada's population, industrial capacity, trade, social security program and foreign influence were small potatoes compared with today. This country's snowballing stature started with the outbreak of the Second World War and there has been no noticeable letup since.

Other countries today look to Canada with respect and for leadership in international affairs. They have increased their purchases of Canadian products to the point where Canada now is the world's fifth largest trading nation behind the United States, the United Kingdom, Germany and France.

Canada's population in 1935 was 10,845,000. Now it is estimated at 15,601,000, swelled by the admission of some 1,326,000 immigrants who saw this country as the promised land in the last two decades.

Canada still is relatively small in a population sense, but its vast resources, now being tapped on an unprecedented scale, and its industrial capacity have helped to overcome this deficiency.

RECORD EXPECTED
One of the best measures of Canadian prosperity is the gross national product—value of all goods and services produced. It stood at $1,345,000,000 in 1935. By 1953 it had zoomed to $21,400,000,000. This year it promises to reach record proportions, after a slight recession in 1954 that was not confined to this country alone.

The national income rose from $3,188,000,000 in 1935 to $18,193,539,947,000,000 in 1954. This year it exports to 59 countries. Canada's increased importance in the council of nations is closely linked with this country's increased military strength and spending.

Norris, Casey Fight Health Units Merger

Oak Bay joined with Saanich Friday in opposition to amalgamation of health services in the lower Vancouver Island area.

Reeve Fred Norris of Oak Bay told a meeting of the Inter-municipal Committee his council feels capable of looking after its own health unit, prefers to maintain the "personalized service" it now enjoys and "we are jealous of our own autonomy."

The discussion followed receipt by the committee of a lengthy report favoring amalgamation, which was prepared by deputy health minister for the province, Dr. G. F. Amyot. Saanich Reeve Joseph Casey was not at the meeting but had opposed the suggestion earlier.

COST ANALYSIS
The committee did agree to ask the provincial health department to provide an analysis of costs under the proposed unified health area and a comparison with present costs.

Dr. Amyot's plan calls for inclusion of the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health, Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit and Oak Bay municipal health service into one body.

He listed various reasons, stating in detail there is room for greater co-operation and an unnecessary breakdown in services throughout the area.

He described the area as a whole as a geographic and economic unit and charged inefficiency through duplication and overlapping of services.

"Some residents feel that they are often being misinformed, misguided and shuffled from one department to another when they are advised that they are in error in regard to reporting disease, seeking advice or requesting service," the doctor's letter read.

He pointed to the situation at Lansdowne Junior High School where two-thirds of the children are resident in Oak Bay or Victoria while the school is in Saanich.

"The question arises, who is responsible for school medical examinations, communicable disease control and home visiting?" the report asked.

Parking Board Plan Wins Chamber Backing

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors are agreed in principle on the need for a special board to supervise the directors endorsed the principle Friday by adopting a report of their civic affairs group. But they decided that, before placing the report before the city council, further efforts should be made to reach agreement with the city public works committee on disputed points.

The report, as approved by the directors, urges the setting up of a parking authority with power to issue revenue bonds, to acquire property, to build and operate parking facilities, the creation of reserves from meter fines and a sliding scale of fines.

"Downtown parking is one of the most vital problems the city has to face," said Forrest L. Shaw, chairman of the civic affairs group.

BIG JOB

Cecil Wyatt, city manager, said that a sliding scale of fines for repeated parking meter infractions would require more than simple card system as recommended in the report.

"Every one of the 2,000 tags handed out each month would have to be checked," he said, "and in addition the ownership of the car in question would have to be investigated."

Of the proposal to acquire property for building parking facilities, Mr. Wyatt asked: "Where are these properties to be made available and at what cost? I believe the cost would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars."

He said there would have to be special legislation to make such a parking authority possible and "I am not too sold on the idea of adding more boards to the operation of civic business."

Tom Denny observed: "Victoria is a small area but growing every year and if we are to maintain our status as a shopping centre it is vital that we have adequate parking space."

MURDER CHARGED—Percy Olmstead, 30, has been charged with murder in the death of his 27-year-old wife, Simone, whose body was found with those of the couple's three children in the smouldering ruins of a three-room dwelling near Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

What's news at Inco?

Fleet experience suggests that savings in battery inspection, and maintenance costs are as important as the long life, temperature and power output characteristics of this new Sintered Plate Nickel-Cadmium Battery. Because this battery does not fume it can be located inside the truck cab or in the back of the bus.

Once a year water is added. Holds its charge in storage. No damage if discharged. The full story is below, and should interest every fleet operator.

NEW BATTERY LASTS 15 YEARS! INCO NICKEL PLAYS IMPORTANT PART

Designed for tough conditions, the new Nickel-Cadmium Battery is capable of successful service at 65° below zero and at 135° above. It has extra starting power and low maintenance costs. Inco aided in development of the special materials that made this remarkable battery possible.

Here are Facts About the Sintered Plate Nickel-Cadmium Battery

Ques. Will it operate in extreme cold and heat?

Ans. Types are available which will start an engine at 65° below zero F. Can be charged at 65° below zero F. These batteries will not freeze until the temperatures drop below 75° below zero F., and will not be damaged even if they are frozen. At the other extreme these batteries will operate successfully at temperatures as high as 135° F. without damage to the battery.

Ques. What type of battery is it?

Ans. The new Nickel-Cadmium Battery is an alkaline battery, employing potassium hydroxide, rather than acid, as the electrolytic compound.

Ques. What is the Nickel-Cadmium Battery suitable for?

Ans. The Nickel-Cadmium Battery can be used in any type of service where the conventional type of storage battery is employed. No modification of the charging system or of the electrical system is required.

Ques. How about storage?

Ans. The Nickel-Cadmium Battery can be stored either charged or uncharged without damage. If stored charged, it will hold its charge for a very long time. At low temperatures there is practically no loss of charge. This means that the battery can be left out all winter and it will be ready for work in the spring. With this battery, fleet operators need no "battery room". Cycling of batteries in stock is eliminated.

Ques. How does it compare in size and weight with other batteries?

Ans. In a truck or bus a Nickel-Cadmium Battery half the size of a conventional battery will give twice the starting power at low temperatures and is much lighter.

Ques. Does it give off fumes?

Ans. The Sintered Plate Nickel-Cadmium Battery does not give off noxious or corrosive fumes. It can safely be installed under the rear seat of a bus, away from the damaging effect of salt and gravel.

Ques. Can heavy-duty types be obtained?

Ans. They are giving good service starting railway diesels and operating railway signal systems and in many tough jobs.

Ques. Will they soon be available in Canada?

Ans. Canadian-made batteries are already available and in use in limited quantities in Canada.

London Crowds Cheer Princess

Margaret Dates Peter 8th Time After Homage at Father's Statue

(Compiled From Reuters and UP)
LONDON—Sidewalk crowds in London's grimy East End cheered Princess Margaret this afternoon as she drove to a church community centre for official ceremony. The princess smiled and waved at the people who had braved cold, rainy weather for a glimpse of her inside a royal limousine. Meantime, her rumored suitor, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, exercised race horses at Epsom for 90 minutes and returned to London.

The divorced airman spent last evening with the 25-year-old Princess Margaret at the home of friends. It was their eighth date in nine days.

Less than six hours after his goodnight to Margaret he thundered across the grey Epsom Downs through an easterly gale astride a fleet steed named Experience II. A pretty brunette-stable girl named Mary Smith rode with him in the dawn gallop.

Margaret Friday night returned radiant and smiling through pouring rain to Clarence House, her London home, after the meeting with Townsend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brand, members of Margaret's personal circle of friends.

SECRECY FAILED—It was the second night in a row that they had seen each other at the home of friends. On each occasion, the visits lasted about six hours.

The couple took pains to keep their latest meeting secret. The princess arrived first at the Brands' unpretentious Georgian house soon after her black Rolls Royce sped out of Clarence House at 6.30 p.m. and dodged carloads of reporters attempting to follow.

Townsend, leaving behind his conspicuous green car, was driven to the Brands' home by Mark Bonham Carter, another guest at the dinner, at whose home he and Margaret dined together earlier in the week. They arrived about 20 minutes after the princess, whose car had by now been whisked out of sight.

Not until the princess' private detective was spotted outside was it confirmed that the couple were together again.

ATTENDED UNVEILING—Shortly after 1 a.m. the princess, in a three-quarter-length silk brocade cocktail dress and mink stole left the four-story cream house with her lady-in-waiting.

Earlier, Margaret had made a public appearance when she stood in the rain near Buckingham Palace, to watch her sister, Queen Elizabeth, unveil a statue of their father, the late King George VI.

Before being driven to the Brands' dinner party Townsend was asked if he had been invited to the unveiling ceremony. He said he could not discuss the matter.

The princess stood a long time staring at the statue and only woke from her reverie when her brother-in-law, the Duke of Edinburgh, went over to her and took her by the arm.

Ownership by British Railways of 51,000 houses, flats and other properties occupied by its employees at an annual rent of about $18,000,000 makes the company the largest landlord in Britain.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By AB KENT
IRVING STRICKLAND

Do you think the Archbishop of Canterbury should rule against the marriage of Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend?

Tom Wilkinson, service station operator, 601 Gorge East: "No, I don't think he should. The possibility of Princess Margaret ascending to the throne is remote, so why shouldn't she marry Townsend?"

Mal Dawes, mechanic, 1017 Chamberlain: "If she wants to marry him, let her go ahead. Other people of the Church of England—marry divorcees; why shouldn't she? She takes after her uncle anyway."

Don McClintick, paper maker, 45 Moss: "I don't think the church should butt in at all. If she likes the guy, I don't understand why they shouldn't marry each other."

Bob Macmillan, motel operator, 1494 Beach: "She has about one chance in 100 of becoming Queen. You couldn't very well ask the archbishop to sanction the marriage, but since her obligation is minor and her chances of gaining the throne are remote her heart should rule her mind."

Eileen Leechman, waitress, 1494 Washington: "No, I don't. He has to, of course, but she should choose for herself, don't you think? If I were in Princess Margaret's place, I'd be mad."

SERIOUS SIDE—Formally gowned and wearing tiaras, Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret enter Lambeth Palace, residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury in London, to attend a dinner party. Margaret conversed privately for 15 minutes with the archbishop, who is reportedly opposed to the possibility of marriage between Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a divorced person. W. A. Scott Appeals to Queen in Protest Against 'Persecution and Blackmail'

Mayorality candidate W. A. Scott disclosed in Oak Bay court Friday that he has written a "strong" letter to Queen Elizabeth protesting "persecution and blackmail."

The letter, he said, was written in May and said his family was being blackmailed and that some members of the legal profession were worse than "China Coast pirates."

Mr. Scott said he received an answer to his letter through the governor-general, who directed the information to the attorney-general.

Mr. Scott was directed to lay complaints before the Law Society. He said he did so and is awaiting a reply.

He referred to the letter after taking the stand and kissing the Bible and a chain of Buddhist beads.

Mr. Scott, fined $40 on an assault charge last week, was convicted and fined $10 Friday on a charge of installing electrical equipment at 1052 Newport without a permit.

Municipal electrical inspector Charles Wagget said equipment was installed between March 3 and Oct. 5. He said

Scott did not have a permit to install the wiring.

Mr. Scott admitted correspondence between the inspector and himself as evidence and claimed he made sound efforts to obtain a permit before going ahead with the work.

Mr. Scott said the inspector failed to inspect material, on request, before it was installed, and several times turned down requests for a permit.

Mr. Wagget said he asked Mr. Scott to submit a plan of the proposed wiring.

Mr. Scott said he first made a sketch and gave it to the inspector. It was turned down on the basis it was unacceptable and did not conform to code specifications.

Mr. Scott said he then had a plan drawn up by a qualified electrical contractor, and it was turned down by Mr. Wagget.

Mr. Scott submitted there was sufficient evidence for acquittal on the evidence of a "petty tyrant" witness whose authority went to his head.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall said Mr. Scott had not filed application for a permit and therefore must find him guilty.

BIRTHDAYS, anniversaries, graduations, a new job—all are occasions for rejoicing as well as for reflection and new resolve. Whether or not a list of resolutions is made, the accomplishments of the past can be either a hitching post or a signpost to a brighter future. DEADLY MUSHROOM

'Destroying Angel' On Exhibition Here

A death-dealing mushroom known as the "destroying angel," which takes the lives of about 30 persons a year in New York, is among a large collection of fungi on display at the Provincial Museum.

The exhibition, the largest of its kind ever held in the province, opened at the museum today. On display are over 300 different life-size imitations of mushrooms, as well as exhibits of common plant and tree disease fungi.

Dr. Adam Szczawinski, museum botanist, said the display will enable Victorians to see the difference between "poisonous and edible mushrooms."

"The most poisonous is the destroying angel, which is sometimes found around Victoria," he said. "It kills as quickly as a rattlesnake bite."

The botanist said there are a large number of edible mushrooms on Vancouver Island, but few people picked them because of fear of being poisoned.

"In eastern Europe the commercial mushroom is almost unknown," he said. "You buy wild mushrooms, such as the edible boletus, at the markets. These also can be found here, along with other tasty types."

The exhibition also features a fungi from which quinine is extracted.

Some excellent mushroom paintings by Frank Beebe, museum naturalist, Betty Newton and W. B. Anderson of Victoria, are on display.

The exhibition will be open six weeks.

Students Hear Irish Evangelist; Gael Stott Named 'Tower' Editor

By BARBARA SANSON
Times Victoria College Correspondent

Arriving at truth from experience is the basis of a strong religious belief, Irish evangelist Rev. Robert Cunningham told students of Victoria College this week.

He spoke as guest of the Student Christian Movement on the campus.

Another recent interesting speaker also sponsored by the SCM was Rev. E. M. Nicols, national secretary of the movement.

He was at the college two days and answered innumerable questions from students.

The SCM is one of the most active and prominent religious groups at the college, and its purpose is to provide members with social activities as well as worship.

Another highlight of the week was an address by H. A. Butterfield, an author, who has written a book about Jamaica.

Gael Stott has been named editor-in-chief of The Tower, the college annual. Assisting her will be Harlene Christian, with Monty Little, in charge of advertising.

Other Tower staff members named were Myra Johnson.

Myra Hunter, Maxine Errington, Barbara Sanson, Cordell Newby, Barbara Salonen and Mike Partridge.

Labor and Politics

ONE RESULT OF THE IMPENDING merger of Canada's two national labor organizations apparently will be labor's divorce from party politics.

For a long time the Canadian Congress of Labor has accepted the CCF as "the political arm of labor." At the recent CCL convention a resolution reaffirming that alliance was pushed through with rather frantic haste before any objections could make themselves heard.

For the moment the CCF is still the political arm of the CCL (a pretty weak arithmetic arm) which is not connected with the much larger body of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

When the CCL and TLC are merged the latter will form a substantial majority of the single organization. Since the TLC is against association with the CCF, and since even some of the CCL unions are against it, labor appears certain to cut its ties with party politics.

This will be a wise decision from labor's standpoint. In the CCF, labor can never hope to elect more than a minute minority of the Canadian Parliament, to form a government in the farm province of Saskatchewan and perhaps the opposition in a few other provinces. Organized workers can accomplish much for their cause within the major political parties or by supporting candidates of any party who seem most friendly to labor.

Samuel Gompers' theory that labor should "reward its friends and punish its enemies" is still a sound theory—especially sound in Canada.

This is an extremely diverse nation, in geography, in race, in local interest. No political party can possibly succeed if it is based on one group of people in such a society. A "labor" party in the strict sense could succeed in Canada no more than a farmers' party, or an employers' party. A national party must have a broad base in all parts of the country among all sorts of people. All parties based on any class, however large, are doomed to remain nothing more than opposition splinters.

In any case, as countless elections have proved, the workers of Canada may organize but they can never be controlled on election day. They vote as they please. Not many of them outside British Columbia and Saskatchewan vote for the CCF, which regards itself as their only friend.

Labor is too wise to believe that the CCF is its only friend and knows that all its huge advances in the present generation have come—with the single exception of Saskatchewan—from non-socialist parties.

Increasingly labor thinkers realize that textbook socialism is the enemy of the labor union since it must create a state boss more powerful than the private boss and state planning which cannot accept any interference from the union.

Organized labor does not have to fear any dilution of its political power merely because it imputes a withered political arm. The growing power of labor, organized and unorganized, in a country where nearly everybody is a worker whatever he calls himself, has grown steadily, is still growing and has shifted the gravity centre of our politics. But this power has little to do with the CCF.

Nye Bevan—Up Again, Down Again

ONCE AGAIN THE POWERFUL trades union leaders, whose strength is dominant in the British Labor Party organization, have quenched the fire of left-wing Aneurin Bevan.

When Mr. Bevan again tore open the rift in the party at Margate this month, the union leaders threatened him with the destruction of his following in local elections not now entered by the union faction. They could do this, they explained to the fiery Welshman, by revising the constitution in a way to make their numbers felt in contests which at present give Bevanites six out of seven constituency seats on the party executive.

Mr. Bevan retreated. In his later public utterances he has been subdued.

But if the trades unions apparently know how to handle Mr. Bevan, they still have the problem of winning national elections for Labor. They are, as one journal comments, seeking not only a new leader to replace Mr. Clement Attlee, who wants to step down, but new organization and new policy. So far this joint search, with the possible exception of new leadership, has not been rewarding.

Mr. Bevan on numerous occasions has advanced the claim that he himself represents the answer. His argument has little appeal for trades union spokesmen. They have let Nye Bevan know that. At the moment he appears convinced. How long conviction will last is questionable. One point seems certain from his previous history: it will not be indefinite.

The British Labor Party, which some voters at the last general election said could not be distinguished from the Conservatives, has problems. Mr. Bevan will serve as a reminder of that fact—and as a problem himself.

Knuckle Greetings

IF A WHITE MAN CREATES A favorable impression on a native of remote Netherlands New Guinea, he may receive the "knuckle" greeting, writes Albert E. Norman in The Christian Science Monitor.

The greeting is described thus:

"The native offers his hand with the fist closed but with the fingers slightly apart. If the white man knows the social ropes, he does the same and the two fit their fingers together. Fingers close tight together and each pulls hard until the locked knuckles separate with an audible click. This is a form of greeting which may well have survived unchanged from the Stone Age.

"To get a knuckle greeting from a native tribesman in New Guinea," says Mr. Norman, "is like getting listed in the social register."

There is something faintly familiar about the process. In an age remembered by the older generation—before education became progressively more civilized—a new boy entering the schoolyard for the first time also received a "knuckle" greeting. It, too, had probably survived largely unchanged from the Stone Age. And if the new boy could put up a good "pair of fives" himself, he also became listed in the playground's social register.

Which probably merely goes to prove the old French idiom that the more things change the more they are the same.

LOOKING OVER MY SHOULDER

Bill Smith, May His Tribe Increase...

ACCORDING to the telephone directory there are 488 Smiths in Victoria. Among the best known of all of them is ex-Lieut. William Smith, former Victoria fireman, flautist, cats' meat man, raconteur, amateur magician, singer and expert gardener.

Ex-Lieut. Smith is a man of many parts, as you will gather, but his chief claim to fame is that he is responsible for the establishment in Victoria of no less than 149 of the Smiths now living here.

(Correction: He telephoned since this article was in type to report the arrival of a new grandchild. "That makes it an even 150, mate, aiming for the 200 mark," he says.)

It happened this way. Destiny guided Bill's steps from London, England, 45 years ago. He went to Saskatchewan. There he got a job driving a brewery team.

"But gorbime, mate," he says, "it was cold there. That was no place for a Cockney. So I packs up and brings my wife and young brother, Fred, to Victoria. We arrived here Saturday, April 17, 1911. We had '87 between us. Sunday morning at 8 o'clock I walked into the Victoria Fire Department and got a job right away from the late Chief Tom Davis, best chief Victoria ever had."

Merriman

"By 9 o'clock I was driving a three-horse truck to a fire on Courtney St. Blimee, that was funny."

"It was easy to follow the parade to the fire, but coming back I was on my own. I drove 'arf way around the town trying to find my way back to the station."

"I was with the department for 33 years. I quit in April, 1944. I went home and told the wife I wasn't getting any younger and that kind of work was getting pretty tough for me. She took it in good part. 'Knew it wasn't going to be a steady job when you started it,' she told me."

"But, mate, you'll never get my story into one of them little columns you write?" Bill told me. "It would take a page to tell you all the experiences of my life, let alone the other 149 Smiths."

So let's get back to the great Smith clan that ex-Lieut. Bill has been responsible for establishing in Victoria.

DONE WITH SNOW

"As soon as I got settled in Victoria I realized this was a real place to settle," he said. "No more snow and blizzards for me. I started telling all the other Smiths about it."

Three years later Bill hired an express wagon and drove to the CPR wharf. It was a bright July day, he recalls. Into the express wagon he loaded 13 other Smiths and their belongings. The new Smith arrivals included his mother and father and brothers and sisters.

As Our Readers See It

DUTY AND HAPPINESS

Re "The Royal Romance," Oct. 19. It is all very well for the writer of this editorial to talk about Princess Margaret's duty to throne and church, while talking disdainfully about her and Peter Townsend's love for each other ("Star-cross'd lovers," he says), but I am sure that thousands of the readers of this editorial will call it conventional, narrow-minded, sanctimonious.

Why should she sacrifice her chance for a happy life to the so-called honor of throne and church. Both of them are entitled to such happiness as they see it, just as any other human being. And if the church's out-dated rules stand in the way, then it is Princess Margaret's chance to demonstrate that "love is supreme"; if, at the same time, the church is stripped of its unreasonable domination over so many human beings, over the State itself, so much the better; it is high time. As for the honor of the throne, an independent stand by the Princess will enhance that honor.

What the world needs for progress is more people who dare to make up their own mind and express their opinion; Princess Margaret has the chance to show the world that she has the character to do so. Her duty is to be true to herself and her fellowmen.

As Ed Murrow quoted somebody in his 5 p.m. broadcast, KIRO, Oct. 19, while talking about this, "it is the crisis of the church" and "The value of happiness is underrated—too often."

F. H. STAVEMAN,
Langford Lake, V.I.

WHAT IS MORE HONORABLE

Appropos of the editorial in Wednesday's Times with reference to "The Royal Romance," each person is entitled to his or her own opinion. Though the editor may be a gentleman whose views are generally sound, I fear that in regard to matters of the heart, (the mainspring of human existence,) he is by no means infallible.

That Group Captain Townsend is "old enough to be her father" matters not one iota. It has been proved many times that when love is true, it deepens with the years in spite of the difference in age. It would be also well to realize that one wise partner is much more likely to ensure a long and happy marriage than the union of two young and foolish persons. Experience teaches.

This is the twentieth century, not an unenlightened medieval era. The chances are that Princess Margaret will never ascend to the throne and what if she did? Her husband would be Consort with no official Royal status and her children need not succeed her.

The church would have us believe that Love is God and of God; how therefore can their representative, Canon C. T. Kirtland, suggest that the royal romance is an affront to the church or any other worthy institution that aspires to godliness?

Let us therefore use the intelligence that God also gave us and pray that He may preserve us from all 'dispassionate and objective' views; remembering that we must be quite sure that we ourselves invariably make the hard decision, before we presume to dictate such a course of action to our fellows.

The "honor of the church," whatever that ambiguous statement may mean, can surely only be preserved by the leaders of the church, not by its fallible congregation however exalted socially.

As for the "honor of the Throne," Poppycock; our Princess appears to be seeking Holy Matrimony with love in her heart for a brave man innocent of any crime whatever.

What in heaven's name is more honorable than that?

MARGARET E. CORDNER,
141 Robertson street.

Still Holding It Together

Christian Science Monitor

A few generations ago when most farm work was done by four-footed "hay-burners" one of the principal uses for wire was to hold bales of hay together. It took several feet of wire for the job, and wire so employed was only beginning its career of usefulness.

Nowadays, when more of the nation's work is done indoors and the only sheaf most people would recognize is a sheaf of papers, and when a large part of business consists of feeding typewriters, billing machines, and brief cases, miles and miles of wire are consumed in making paper clips.

We don't have the statistics, but we imagine that more steel must be fashioned into paper clips for holding a memo "from the desk of . . ." to the invoice, specification sheet, and customer's letter than is fabricated into baling wire. If you want to know what holds the world together these days, it's the ubiquitous paper clip.

By TOM MERRIMAN

Bill has three sons himself, all married. His brothers and sisters got married. One son, William, has made a great contribution to perpetuate the Smith family line. He has nine children, all of them married and six of them boys.

NO PADDING

His married Harriet has ten children. Her sister name being Medd, Harriet has made no contribution to the Smith family roster but ex-Lieut. Smith insisted the article wouldn't be complete without mentioning the Medds.

"I don't have to pad the list, mate, to make the total 150," he said.

"I get around and seem all right but I have had one or two major operations recently. I've got one foot in the grave and another on a banana peel but if you count daughters' and sisters' children too, within 25 years there will be more than a thousand Smiths in Victoria, all here because me and the wife found Saskatchewan too perishingly cold and decided to come to Victoria."

"I don't know if I'll live to see the day, but I get around a lot."

As Bill said, his story and that of 149 other Smiths can't be told in one article. His reminiscences of former chiefs of the fire department, of horse-drawn trucks, and his own enterprising ventures since he retired from the force, not excluding his personal introduction to Victoria of the science of flautology, should be written about later.

LOOSE ENDS

EDMONTON—Always I have to steel myself before making any mention of the Victoria climate. Whatever one says in abuse or praise is bound to offend the Island natives or the Canadians.

But a decent respect for the truth compels me to say that, at this distance, the weather I left behind me at home yesterday looks pretty wonderful up here on the edge of the prairies. The prairie natives won't like to hear it, but they are trembling on the white abyss of winter. Just as our autumn is getting its second wind.

There is no snow on the ground yet hereabouts but you can feel it in the air. You know immediately when you have crossed the hump of the Rockies, left British Columbia and entered Alberta, by the nakedness of the poplar trees.

JUST beyond Kamloops, at dawn this morning, I looked out the window in sleepless misery to behold a spectacle I could hardly believe. The mountains of the North Thompson Valley were flowing with molten gold on a scale which I am bound to say our Island can never equal.

Golden lava erupted as from innumerable volcanoes on both sides of the train, spilled down the hillsides, oozed across the bottom lands and blew with the poplar leaves in the wind. Why, the whole country was gold-plated from Kamloops up to the Yellowhead Pass. But not beyond.

At the moment British Columbia is the only province still on the gold standard. Not a fleck of yellow on the Rockies' far shoulder. The sun shone bright and warm on the western slope. On the eastern only leaden skies, full of potential snow, black spruce and depressing sweeps of stubble.

THIS, you will say, is hardly worth writing home about. Of course not. Still, I wanted the reader to know how lucky he is to be alive in Victoria and the sun. (Probably it will be raining when this reaches you but it will be snowing everywhere else.)

A few moments ago I received some impartial comment on our homeland from two disinterested witnesses.

They were both widows, swollen with good food, sparkling with diamonds and evidently rich. The trains are full of these charming creatures who testify to the hard work and provident provisions of the departed Canadian husbands. I sometimes think, indeed, that the railways of Canada would go broke if it weren't for widowhood and life insurance.

ANYWAY, by pretending to read a book in the observation car and eavesdropping with my good ear, I learned that these widows came respectively from Toronto and Fort William, had been visiting friends in Victoria and were frankly desolated at the thought of going home to face a Canadian winter.

One of them had heard, she said, that Victoria suffered a good deal of rain now and then but, coining a phrase, she remarked that one didn't have to shovel rain. Whereupon both broke into raptures about Victoria, ordered Scotch whisky, could not get it in Alberta, had to settle for beer and, thus fortified, lectured and outbid each other in praises of Victoria.

WHEN they got around to the point of agreeing (as I knew they would) that Victoria was just too quaint and cute for words, I wanted to rise up in civic patriotism to ask why so many words were required, to denounce this old libel and to defend our local manhood; but, being a moral coward, I merely slunk off to my room and brooded darkly on widowhood.

No man can brood long on a transcontinental journey. I have said before, I shall say again as long as I can limp across Canada that this is a large and amazing country. I can't remember now how many times I have crossed it, how often I have wakened in the morning to see a new kind of world, but the thing still staggers me, for it never looks the same.

A FEW months ago I crossed it by car and thought I had taken a pretty thorough look at it. It bears no resemblance to the thing I saw last June. It might be not only another country but another continent. You miss a lot of it from the train. You miss another complete chunk of it from a car. And you see nothing but a two-dimensional map from a plane.

After all these uncounted crossings, by both railways, by car and by plane, I have been forced to realize in my old age that I can never hope to see much of Canada. Besides, only twenty-four hours out of Victoria and moving through the reaped fields of alien corn I am already homesick.

Like a traveler who has been absent for months at least I write this only to ask how the chrysanthemums are getting on, who is mayor out there now, is the sun still shining and the great and good Government functioning still more brilliantly?

(A moment ago we passed a string of freight cars, filled with coal. The coal was covered with a thin layer of snow. And then you complain of your weather.)

AFTER A DECADE, MORE ESSENTIAL THAN EVER

By B. A. TOBIN

Humanity's Greatest Effort to Survive

OBSERVANCES throughout the world next Monday will mark the tenth anniversary of the legal inauguration of the United Nations. Although the signing of the history-making agreement took place on Oct. 26, 1945, it was four months before the organization itself got under way.

The ensuing decade has seen serious threats to the great new concept that came into being as the echoes of the Second World War still rumbled around the globe.

The United Nations was born amid the high hopes of humanity, and not a few fears that such an advanced ideal would never work. But most of all, it was born of necessity—the world-wide realization that without some such co-operation among at least a majority of the nations there could be no hope of peace, of security, or of a future.

ganda speeches and diplomatic snubs—these mean very little beside the major attainment.

And when to that salient success are added the many lesser achievements of the United Nations—in preventing or halting minor conflicts, settling international disputes before they devolve into warfare, fighting epidemics, aiding backward countries, feeding hungry populations, assisting children of have-not nations, easing financial needs, promoting education and technical progress—when these and other results are added, the full stature of the United Nations emerges.

The cost of these achievements has been considerable. By May of last year

Nations charter have grown up a number of defensive alliances dedicated to the preservation of security. It has sometimes been claimed that these violate the aims of the United Nations, that they detract from the supreme authority of the global organization. But this is not so.

Such regional groupings are expressly provided for in the U.N. charter, where their objectives coincide with the U.N. aims of preserving peace and security.

Deter Aggressors

Preservation of peace does not mean that a country shall not resist unprovoked aggression. Hence such groups as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which is a banding of 14 nations which will come to the aid of any one of them that is attacked, serve to prevent war by deterring potential aggressors.

The Kaiser launched into war because he believed that Britain and the United States would remain aloof. Hitler believed that the United States would not become embroiled in the conflict he began. Had there been a firm NATO-type organization in those days the history of the world might have been vastly different.

Thus NATO and similar defensive alliances are well within the letter and the spirit of the United Nations. They act as additional safeguards for security.

It would be idle to argue that the United Nations has been a 100 per cent success. The failures have been many, the setbacks frequent. But the progress has been consistent. The main goal has not been lost sight of.

Credit Balance

As one observer has put it it would be foolish to abandon the Ten Commandments because people fail to live up to them. It would be equally disastrous to destroy the United Nations merely because it had not always been successful.

Thus, as the world this week-end surveys a decade of United Nations existence, there will be more thankfulness than criticism, more hope than despair. Article I of the charter, which sets out the purposes of the organization, is still a living document:

"To maintain international peace and security . . . To develop friendly relations among nations . . . To achieve international co-operation in solving problems . . . To be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends."

These are still the objects of man's striving. Humanity's greatest attempt at global co-operation marches on.

UNITED NATIONS EMBLEM

Canada had contributed nearly $210 millions to United Nations administration and various associated funds. This was a very small portion of the total cost. But even the grand total appears small compared with the cost of armaments—a negligible premium to pay for the global life insurance provided.

President Eisenhower noted these facts before the General Assembly two years ago, when he called on the world to reduce armaments and put the wealth instead into productive use.

"Every gun that is made," said the United States leader, "every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies—in the final sense—a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed."

"We pay for a single fighter plane with half a million bushels of wheat, and for a single destroyer with new homes that could house more than 8,000 people. Is there no other way the world may live?"

Within the framework of the United

Atomic Ending

The Second World War had ended in a manner never before experienced by man. It had terminated abruptly with the explosion of two atomic bombs. The world still rocked with those explosions, scarcely comprehending their significance, as the delegates gathered at San Francisco.

It was only in the succeeding months, as more information was made available, that the full enormity of the atomic age burst on mankind. The necessity for the United Nations became more obvious with each new atomic revelation. The development of the hydrogen bomb, and the new horrors of radioactive fallout and mass destruction, intensified the need.

War had been horrible before. Two global conflicts had demonstrated what science wedded to military demands could produce. Now war became impossible—not impossible to start but impossible to wage if humanity were to survive.

Life or Death

To prevent the start of war, to solve international disagreements by peaceful means, thus became a matter of life or death for civilization as we know it. The United Nations was, and is, the recognized international means by which this salvation is to be achieved.

Beside such an objective, and the success in achieving it to date, all the quarrels and disputes that have marred United Nations meetings fade into obscurity. The angry words, the vituperation, the vetoes and walk-outs, the propa-

'Quiet Diplomacy' Worked

UNITED NATIONS—As a result of what the Secretary-General calls "quiet diplomacy," Canada's chief delegate, Paul Martin, would seem to have salvaged the atom-for-peace debate which was headed for the rocks of dissension. There is a good chance now of a unanimous resolution.

Mr. Martin has not been so much a mediator (being a modest man, he dislikes that description) in this instance as a catalyst, bringing together the opposing parties, and suggesting changes in the proposed draft statute for the international atomic energy agency, which is the cause of all the trouble.

The main objection which such countries as India have against the treaty is the way in which the atomic powers have shoved aside the principle of geographical distribution, a sacred principle here, and rigged the Board of Governors in their favor.

Besides the United States, the United Kingdom, France, the Soviet Union, and Canada, the main atomic powers, the board includes a second category of more or less permanent members. They are Australia, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Portugal and the Union of South Africa, and are described as "the principal producers and contributors of uranium, thorium, and such other source materials."

BUILT-IN MAJORITY

Thus, the atomic powers, and particularly the Western atomic powers, had assured themselves of a built-in majority on the board for the draft statute only allotted six places to the beneficiaries of the agency, the receivers of atomic assistance.

In reviewing these "principal producers," Dr. Homi Bhabha, the distinguished Indian scientist who was chairman of the atom-for-peace conference in Geneva last August, found some of them wanting. To the Indians who, with their thorium sands, felt doubly insulted by this statute, the second category was chicanery.

Dr. Bhabha told a closed meeting of the Asian-African group that Australia could not be regarded as an atomic power in any way; it was just a range of which other countries tested their weapons. He said that there were reliable reports that the uranium in the Belgian Congo was exhausted—so how could Belgium be considered a "principal producer"? As for Portugal, the Indian scientist described it as the most under-developed country in Europe which could not, on its own, take advantage of whatever uranium or thorium there might be in its colonies.

Despite such frank, straight-from-the-shoulder remarks as these, Dr. Bhabha has made a deep impression on Mr. Martin and other Western diplomats here. He is a handsome, personable man, who has a way of getting on with people.

SOVIETS MODERATE

At any rate, the Canadian delegate suggested to the Americans that they should let the Indian scientist know what changes they would be ready to make in the draft statute. At the same time, Mr. Martin saw the Russians—and he says quite frankly that it is due to the moderation which the Soviets have shown on this issue that changes have been made possible.

Although the changes are not fully agreed to yet, they amount to scrapping the second category of permanent members and substituting in their place: India; Brazil, which has done some atomic research; a Scandinavian country, either Sweden or Norway, which has an atomic heavy water plant; Czechoslovakia, and possibly Egypt.

Thus, the board would become representative of all parts of the world. Furthermore, the five atomic powers plus these four or five new permanent members of the board would take part in the negotiations for setting up this international agency and would decide on the final statute for it.

It is taken for granted here that such changes would satisfy everyone and would lead to a unanimous resolution. The only question remaining was why Canada should have agreed to the present draft statute in the first place. Mr. Martin had a ready and realistic answer:

"We would have agreed to any treaty, even one which confined the members of the board to the British Commonwealth, so long as we could get the agency started," he said.

Joint Committee Agrees On New Library Cost Plan

For the first time in current negotiations Greater Victoria representatives to the Inter-municipal Committee agreed Friday to a new plan for sharing of library costs.

If the various councils ratify the agreement, the committee will have covered the first step in the drive toward district ownership of the library rather than ownership, as now, by Victoria.

The plan decided upon was a compromise with Esquimalt which had previously objected to suggested payment of $1 per capita by each municipality with the balance derived from charges based on circulation. Esquimalt agreed to the plan in principle but asked that the $1 per capita cost be dropped to 50 cents. The committee agreed. At present, library costs are met by assessments to member municipalities based on circulation within that municipality.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

New, Old in Same Car

LONDON—Alvis is one of the oldest names in the motor car world—as far as this country is concerned, at any rate. Can't say that I remember Canada being cluttered with Alvis cars but here they're plentiful and highly regarded.

They've just brought out a new model which is something of a departure for them. Along with most of the car manufacturers of Britain they have almost—but not quite—fallen in line with adopting the American style of body design.

Hillman, Austin, etc., have followed the American lead of having a two-tone "all-over" design, with panoramic rear window and "mouth-organ" front—not that the English public particularly like that style, especially the front. They refer to it as "the dollar grin," since manufacturers here just had to conform to it to make any sort of impression on the American market.

This new Alvis job (revolutionary compared to their former conservative, old-fashioned look) has the appearance of an American car—until you look at the front. It's still got that good old radiator. To say the least, it looks out of place with the rest of the design. This is not surprising.

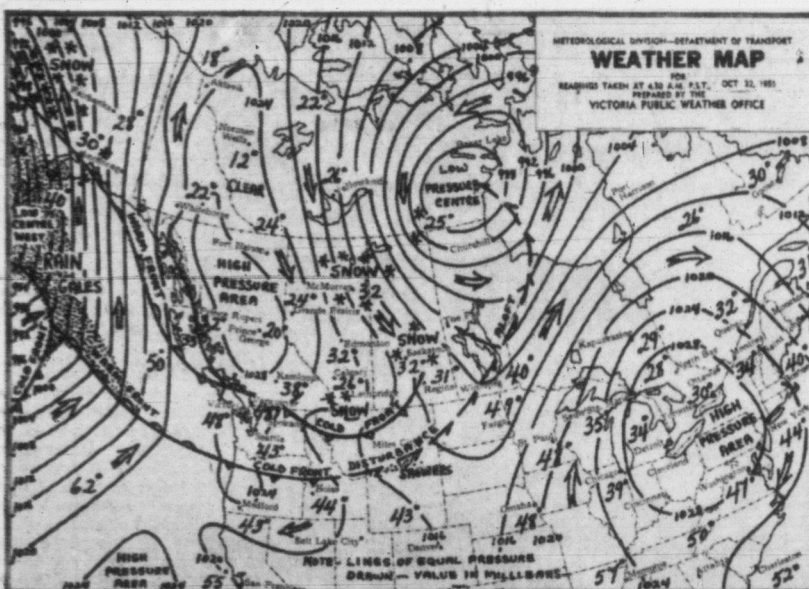

REYBURN

The designer drew in an American style front but the bosses at Alvis were reluctant to go the whole hog in having a modern look. They clung nostalgically to the old-fashioned radiator and made the designer incorporate it.

This sentimental attachment to the old and familiar and reluctance to see it pass away is an English characteristic. On the other side of the Atlantic they don't hesitate to scrub out the past and start again from scratch when it comes to industrial design. The English are much more prone to cling to their memories. I must admit that I have some of this feeling.

For instance, I was sorry to see the running board go. As I did, you probably found it strange at first to step out of a car and automatically place your foot where the running board should have been, only to come a cropper when your foot went right on down to the pavement.

Running boards had their uses, as in something to rest your foot on when leaning on the car talking to someone in it. Ideal for dogs, too. They love to get the breeze in their faces. We used to have a dog named Buster for whom the joy of his life was riding on the running board, leaning out so as to get the full force of the wind in his face. This used to slow our car trips up, though, because every time we went round a sharp bend he used to go straight on and we had to go back and pick him up.

Week-End Weather Picture Across Canada

SYNOPSIS—Gales are expected to hit the north coast this afternoon as the edge of a severe Pacific storm comes closer. Clouds and showers from this storm will move into the northern interior tomorrow but southern regions will not be affected very much. An increase in cloudiness will help to make the fog problem a minor one on the south coast tonight although some areas will fog in before much cloud cover arrives. Southern interior temperatures will be somewhat above normal today and Sunday.

ADVERTISING STUNTS IN VARIOUS FORMS HAVE BEEN USED IN PAST GENERATIONS TO CAPTURE THE ATTENTION OF GREAT MASSES OF PEOPLE. A HUNDRED YEARS AGO THE CITY OF LONDON AND OTHER LARGE CENTERS OF POPULATION WERE FREQUENTLY "COVERED" BY PLACARD CARRYING INDIVIDUALS AND PARADES IN FANCY DRESS ADVERTISING A NEW CURE-ALL MEDICINE OR A CONCERT OR A PLAY. LEAFLETS SHOT FROM CANNONS RAISED MORE ANGER THAN SALES FROM TIDY ENGLISHMEN. SIGNS ON WALLS AND GAS LIT SIGNS, SOME OF TREMENDOUS SIZE PROCLAIMED THE VIRTUES OF PRODUCTS OF A NEW INDUSTRIAL AGE. IN 1897 AN OPPORTUNIST AT BLACKPOOL ENGLAND GOT HIMSELF IN TROUBLE BUT HAD THE SCOP OF THE YEAR IN ADVERTISING. NELSON'S BATTLESHIP FLOUNDERED ON EXHIBITION, WAS DRIVEN BY STORM FROM ITS ANCHORAGE AND LAY HALF CAPSIZED. THE LOCAL AGENT FOR ONE PILL COMPANY WENT OUT AND BLAZONED HIS FIRM'S NAME ON THE HULL. THE PUBLICITY THAT FOLLOWED BROUGHT THE PRODUCT TO THE ATTENTION OF FAR MORE PEOPLE THAN THOSE WHO VIEWED THE SIGN FROM THE SHORE. SETTING THE CLAIM FOR DAMAGES AGAINST THE QUEEN'S NAVY TURNED OUT TO BE ECONOMICAL PUBLICITY.

ART in REVIEW

By COLIN GRAHAM

One of the most spirited sides of life in a gallery derives from the fact that few people are just indifferent to paintings. Seldom have we had an exhibition to which visitors have reacted with neutral feelings. Even if people violently dislike a show that fact is always in a way stimulating, for it serves as a reminder that they do after all care very much about painting.

The variety of their opinions, in fact, often adds a rather tangy spice to gallery life. Let me give you an example. A recent exhibition rather on the abstract side had scarcely opened when a gentleman called to me from one of the galleries saying, "I would like your apologies for these paintings here." A few minutes after that another person came up to me to congratulate us on "the best show you have ever had." These two remarks, as it turned out, set a pattern which was repeated with few variations throughout the duration of the show.

OPPOSING VIEWS

Not long before this we had shown a group of older paintings. Many people took the trouble to thank us, after seeing these, for "a chance to see some real painting again." In an adjoining gallery there was hanging at the same time a collection of abstract oils by a painter from another part of Canada.

As it happened, I myself was thoroughly enjoying the older paintings and finding the modern work not at all to my taste. I was thus surprised to see some visitors going rapidly from the older to the newer. DRIVING TODAY AND TOMORROW. By Margaret O. Hyde. Illustrated by Clifford N. Geary. Whittlesey House. SPORT AND RACING CARS. By Raymond P. Yates and Brook W. Yates. Illustrated with drawings and photographs. Harper. Helpful indeed to anyone new to driving is Mrs. Hyde's clear discussion of safe driving and the mechanics of automobiles. On the other hand, experienced drivers will relish hearing about "hot rods" from the Yateses. Reading level: older boys and girls.

through the older work and reacting to the abstract work as though, as one of them put it, they were getting a breath of fresh air after enduring ancient mustiness.

Now, as I see it, it is no part of the business of a curator to try to impose his own taste on the public, although sometimes he can scarcely avoid doing so by virtue of the fact that he and his exhibition committee are compelled to exercise some choice in selecting the gallery's program from the limited number of available shows.

Nevertheless, when I see people failing to enjoy works by the older painters whose contents are to me rich and rewarding, or when they tell me they can find no good whatsoever in "modern" contemporary work, I find it hard to resist the temptation to say to both sides that, in my opinion, they are unnecessarily depriving themselves of some very lasting pleasures.

CUMULATIVE JUDGMENT

To those, mostly of the younger generation, who find the art of older periods lacking in variety and excitement, I am tempted respectfully to point out certain things which are, or should be, "glimpses of the obvious." I find in the first place that most of them have not yet had a chance to see the greatest art of the past in quantity and in the flesh (we hope in some degree to remedy that when we build our permanent wing). Then it takes a bold person to dismiss the cumulative judgment of generations of the world's most sensitive and knowledgeable people to the effect that the art in the past shines some of civilization's finest moments. Nor should they lose sight of the fact that most of the great modern masters whom they so justly admire have built their art on the basis of a profound grasp of that of past masters.

To those who would dismiss abstract art as meaningless and of no consequence, I would only ask that they seriously consider certain facts. One of these is that there is, so far as my knowledge goes, hardly a person in a position of authority in the international world of art today who does not take it for granted that much, perhaps most, of the greatest work of this century has been in the abstract category. These, the most knowledgeable are men of our time, can hardly all be wrong. Nor to my knowledge is there among all the scores of histories of 20th century art written in the past 15 years one book that does not give priority to place to those artists whom the conservative is apt to lump together under the term "modernist."

By all means let the sparks of controversy fly. But let there also be, in the interests of reason and fact, some give and take on both sides.

3 Canadian Newsmen Write Humor Books

Three Canadian newspapermen have books of humor on the latest publishing lists—Stuart Trueman of Saint John, N.B., Lex Schrag of Toronto and Eric Nicol of Vancouver.

Trueman's "Cousin Elva," (McClelland and Stewart) with lively pen and ink sketches by the author, deals with the be-mused characters in and around "Trimble's Tourist Rest," few of whom can cope with the uninhibited Elva.

The editor of the Telegraph-Journal and of the Evening Times-Globe in Saint John gets in the odd glimpse of the Bay of Fundy shore and the New Brunswick countryside, but Elva's rich character is the meat of the story. Mr. Trueman, aside from his newspaper work, has had many light and humorous pieces in leading magazines.

MORTGAGE MANOR

Lex Schrag's "Mortgage Manor" (Hyer Press) will cheer many a suburbanite who, like the Toronto newspaper columnist, has a constant battle keeping his home up to the level of efficiency and sightliness demanded by his ever-loving spouse, with the assistance of helpful neighbors who know just how things should be done. Schrag, who occasionally finds time to play chess between his suburban struggles and his work for the Toronto Globe and Mail, has heart-rending struggles with such familiar suburbia as sump tile, free-load-

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

The season is getting brighter—a good deal brighter than I had expected it might be. The reason is a few books, of vastly different character, which have crunched up in the past month which make this country look very interesting indeed.

Out of the current lot, I find, for example, that Canada has ghosts, has a lot of fascinating real people, and, get this, has a humorist too. Well now, surely that is enough right there to make a satirist reviewer essay a timid smile at least.

Take those ghosts. They come in a book called Exploring the Supernatural by R. S. Lambert. Rex Lambert is an Englishman who has been in Canada for many years now. He brought with him not only a fluent pen but a flair for uncovering strange and interesting things and putting them together in a way which is always both informative and diverting.

Flesh and Blood in Hutchison's Book

As for the real people I have discovered this past month, many of them were known to me, in some measure anyway, before I picked up Bruce Hutchison's The Struggle for the Border. But even among those with whom I was already familiar I discovered in this book more flesh and blood than one would ever suspect there was in this country from reading about our conventional "histories." I think it is absolutely safe to say that never has an historical document—land The Struggle for the Border is basically a history, albeit one with a different twist—been assembled in this country which was so proudly peopled by men and women who emerge as understandable personalities rather than as automatic counters used in some herring-gutter's system of bookkeeping.

Cousin Elva 'Should Amuse You'

And then there is that humorist. I know only too well how variegated the impulse to laughter is and no doubt it is dangerous for me to proclaim that I have discovered a new and genuine humorist in this country. But that's what I think anyway and if he doesn't make you laugh, well, there's no help for it. As a matter of fact, the short magazine pieces written by Stuart Trueman which I had read didn't make me laugh very much either, but this first book, Cousin Elva, is the most free-flowing humor I have encountered since Sara Banks.

The episodes in a Maritime summer boarding house which the proprietor had to take with this astonishing woman, Cousin Elva, when he bought it at the same time. The people are credible enough for humorous purposes; the background is vitally Maritime and thoroughly convincing; and the writing itself is very, very deft.

THE AMADEUS QUARTET

Chamber Music Four Confounded Critics

Before coming to these shores for its first concert tour during the 1952-53 season, the Amadeus quartet, scheduled for an appearance November 2 in Victoria High School auditorium, was well known to chamber music lovers in America through its notable recordings of major quartet works for HMV, Deutsche Gramophon and Westminster Records. Unfortunately, many European artists have failed to live up to the promise of their recordings. Therefore, a skeptical group—every one a self-appointed critic—came to the Amadeus first American appearance. But, they left the concert halls cheering the visiting string players. On its first American tour, the Amadeus certainly conquered: rave reviews from the critics and most enthusiastic comments from listeners and managers.

GOVERNMENT BACKWARD IN ARTS LEADERSHIP

CALGARY (CP)—Government subsidization of the arts in Canada is essential if the arts are to develop as they should, Lady Eaton said in an interview here. Lady Eaton, widow of Sir John Eaton and mother of David Eaton, present head of the T. Eaton Co., criticized the government's laxity in coming to the assistance of groups attempting to provide Canada with a cultural life. "What have they done about putting the recommendations of the Massey report into effect?" she asked. "As far as anyone can tell, they have probably pigeon-holed the report."

Lady Eaton said that if as many groups and individuals as possible would petition the government to take action in supporting the arts, "we might get somewhere." "The government has done so much for the people through such things as the baby bonus and old age pensions and yet they have ignored the cultural aspect of life entirely," she said. "I believe they have educated people to think any support of the arts is a pure waste of money."

B.C. Baritone Progressing To Big Goal

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP)—Donald Bell, a dedicated young baritone from Vancouver, is reaching for success in a field challenged by few Canadians.

He wants to be an opera star. Bell takes the first major step toward his goal at the end of this month when he joins the restricted studio at the Staatliche Opera in Berlin. There he will study for about two years under the famed artistic director Carl Ebert. It's high honor for a 21-year-old singer. "I guess it's going to be tough there," said Bell, "but it's a chance to learn. Now I'll have to start learning German."

The rich Canadian voice swells from a six-foot-three frame topped by a mass of blonde hair. The same voice started out in a soprano range when Bell was about 10 years old and it's been under skilled instruction since. SCALES AND SAWDUST. After graduating from high school in South Burnaby, B.C., Bell went to work for a Vancouver plywood mill and for a year mixed his scales with sawdust. Earlier he had planned to study law and follow the career of his father, magistrate Charles C. Bell of South Burnaby.

In Vancouver, Bell worked in the mill throughout the day and spent his evenings studying or singing on the banquet circuit. He made several CBC broadcasts and is still living on the money he saved during that period. In 1953 he won a two-year scholarship to the Royal College of Music, London. Nearing the end of his term this spring, Bell decided Germany was the spot to continue his studies, and he hitchhiked to Berlin to see Ebert, who is supervisor of the internationally-renowned opera company at Glyndebourne, Sussex.

Ebert, impressed by Bell's singing of two operatic arias and a German Lied, invited him to take a place among the 11 students in his Berlin studio, under chief musical coach Jani Strasser.

BEST STARTING PLACE. "I think Berlin's the best starting place," said Bell. "I'd like to stay there about two years, go to Canada for some training and then come back to Europe."

Where would he like to sing eventually? "I'd like to go to the United States of course, but a lot of people sing there just for the standard of production and talent."

"I guess I'd like best to sing at Glyndebourne."

GRUBER CONDUCTS

No Engineering Aid For 'Live' Programs

Following is the continuation of an article by Mr. Gruber, director of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, comparing "live" with recorded music.

We musicians learn every day, and from every performance. Moreover, that certain "tension"—that inspiration of the moment in fact—is, necessarily, absent from a recorded performance—qualities that which none are more important to really vital music-making, but which are always present at public live performances, because they stem primarily from the very fact of performing directly in front of some thousand (s) of listeners, and from the perhaps uneasy but stimulating and challenging awareness that everything MUST come out right the first time; the recording musician is stimulated, or burdened, with no such consideration.

His performance becomes, by contrast, a coldly pre-calculated exercise, approached in the comforting mentality of the recording engineers' skill with the scissors and glue—for snipping a faulty note or passage out of the tape and inserting the correction without anybody the wiser.

We musicians learn every day, and from every performance. Moreover, that certain "tension"—that inspiration of the moment in fact—is, necessarily, absent from a recorded performance—qualities that which none are more important to really vital music-making, but which are always present at public live performances, because they stem primarily from the very fact of performing directly in front of some thousand (s) of listeners, and from the perhaps uneasy but stimulating and challenging awareness that everything MUST come out right the first time; the recording musician is stimulated, or burdened, with no such consideration.

Apologies to Samuel Goldwyn

But my motives in having written as I did are even more "ulterior"—and for the syntax of this sentence my apologies to Samuel Goldwyn. My inspiration for all the foregoing was furnished by several people who have warned me in no uncertain terms not to expect their presence at the next symphony concert on Oct. 23 and 24, because Hindemith's "Mathis der Maler" is on the program. To me, this suggests that these people have heard this work before—and they must have heard it on the radio or on records or via a combination of the two—for public performances of this great contemporary masterpiece are very few and far between indeed.

I hereby earnestly plead with them to reconsider, and to come after all to the Royal next time to put to the test my contention that nothing can really take the place of a "live" performance. Besides, they would deprive themselves of hearing Lloyd Powell play Mozart's D minor Piano Concerto, which, I do think, would be too bad.

Duties Attach to Concert-Goer

Anyway, once in a while, I must point out with the greatest respect and diffidence, certain duties attach to being a concert-goer and an intelligent listener. New music must be given occasional hearings—we, given occasional hearings—we did not play it once in a while, but our public must help us carry out these duties, which they will not do by staying away. And, I strongly suggest, the whole thing may, quite surprisingly, turn out to be far less of a "duty" than may at first be feared.

The idiom of Hindemith's music may be at first a little strange to our classically educated ears; but it really is music of power and eloquence, containing, I assure, several pure major chords! Even so, this music is far less forbidding or revolutionary for us today than were the Beethoven symphonies some 150 years ago when they were new. This is a provable fact. If the listeners of early 19th century Vienna had been unwilling to give Beethoven's music repeated chances by listening to it, their plain truth is that this music would not be with us today.

For it is the music-loving and music-listening public, and NOT the professional cognoscenti, who in the final analysis determine what music shall survive and what music shall not. And such responsible decisions cannot be based on isolated indirect hearings, but must rather be based on repeated "live" hearings.

Thank you for bearing with me these many paragraphs, and please excuse me if I sounded unpleasant, like an axe-grinding demagogue.

Founded in 1566 by the great early Italian composer, Palestrina, the Academy of Santa Cecilia is unique in the world of music and its resident choir has a preeminent place among leading choral organizations of all time. When the Santa Cecilia Choir sings here it will come fresh from a markedly successful N.Y. Carnegie Hall appearance.

Cut Gladioli Leaves Just Before Lifting

Continue planting and cleaning up of perennial beds and borders.

Prepare places for shrubs and roses which may not be available from nurseries until next month.

Lift tuberous begonias if now damaged by frost and rain.

Dahlias and cannas may be lifted and stored. Dry the surface of the tubers in warm airy room for few days.

Cut leaves from gladioli three inches above soil few days before lifting. Dry roots rapidly in warm airy room. Then cut off more stem, clean soil and dry roots from corns, and store.

Hardy outdoor plants which have been potted for cold greenhouse or house decoration, must be kept as cool as possible, and receive good light.

Fuchsias in pots, which have finished blooming and have leaves fallen may be packed closely together in frost-free shed or cold frame. Water once thoroughly, pack loose litter around the pots and stems. Leave shed or frame open in mild weather, close only in frosts.

Parsnips should be left in ground until after hard frost to improve flavor.

Dig rhubarb if wanted for forcing in gentle heat—Expose the roots to cold and frost for two weeks or more, before placing in deep box of rich soil in heated greenhouse or porch.

Lieut. Cmdr. Coates James Bay Captain

Lieut. Cmdr. J. J. Coates, formerly of Paris, Ont., has been appointed commanding officer of the minesweeper HMCS James Bay, attached to the Second Canadian Minesweeping Squadron based at Esquimalt. He succeeds Lieut. Cmdr. G. R. Smith of Guelph, who has been appointed assistant director of personnel (officers) at naval headquarters.

The most famous English yew is Irish. It was discovered in Ireland in 1870, is highly valued for its upright growth and is the darkest green of all evergreen plants. According to the American Association of Nurserymen, the wood once was prized for longbows and may grow to be 1,000 years old.

Winter-Long Slug Protection Secret of Good Forced Rhubarb

There may be some parts of Canada where slugs are not troublesome over winter, but they are not locally. Our slugs keep on the job all the year, and that is one reason we have to use care in covering plants for winter protection.

The place where slugs can really congregate is in a cold frame, especially if it is filled with chrysanthemums or other perennial roots. The tender young shoots which form on the stored roots are the slugs' idea of a perfect feast.

Since these shoots are next year's plants, something has to be done to protect them, and the best thing to date is metaldehyde slug bait.

Slugs have one drawback. As the bait becomes soaked with moisture, so it becomes less potent. To keep a constant supply of dry bait in a coldframe over a wet winter can run into money.

The best idea I have come across is the use of empty soup cans. The bait is placed in the bottom, and the can laid on its side. A small amount of dry earth sprinkled over the lip, so as to provide a nice earth pathway up to the bait, completes the trap.

FOR OUTSIDE USE

The same idea may be used outside if a few pieces of dried grass or fine twig are substituted for the earth, and the open end of the can faced so that driving rain will not get inside.

Two weeks ago we mentioned the dividing of rhubarb, and a few readers have asked if the left-over pieces will rot in a compost heap.

If chopped up the pieces rot very quickly, but there is another use for them before they become compost.

Every piece of root which has a growth bud or eye can be forced for an early food. After forcing they will take from three to four years to come again into production, so that is the time to discard them.

EXPOSE TO FROST

The secret of good forced rhubarb is to expose the roots to two or three heavy frosts before taking them indoors. Sometimes they are ready before Christmas, but it is usually about the middle of January before really heavy frosts are experienced.

Just leave the roots on top of the soil in a fully exposed place and occasionally turn them over to expose all surfaces.

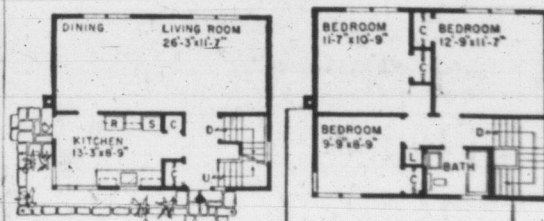

After that, the roots are set into deep boxes of rich soil or well-rotted manure, watered, and placed in a warm spot in the dark. It is a good idea to get the soil prepared and, under cover before it gets too wet.

TV, Radio Set Sales Set New Canada Marks

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadian manufacturers sold more radio and television sets in the first seven months of the year than in the same time last year, the bureau of statistics said today.

The seven-month sales of radio sets totalled 301,486 versus 251,061 a year ago. Sales of TV sets rose to 271,454 from 206,923.

Many people have a difficult time distinguishing the spruce from the fir tree. The spruce usually has four-sided leaves or needles, while the fir has flat leaves, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

NHA Small House Plan

The prospective homeowner in search of a three-bedroom house will be interested in this two-story plan. Designed by Wilson & Newton of Toronto, an interesting exterior pattern has been created by the large covered planting area on two sides of the house, matched by the corner window arrangement.

The interior is designed to provide both privacy and a good view of the rear garden. Those who prefer a spacious arrangement of furniture will like the very large combination living room and dining room which extends the full width of the house. The roomy kitchen is exceptionally well lighted and has easy access to both front and back doors.

The total floor area is 1,144 square feet, while the cubic measurement is 15,875 feet. The exterior measures 28 feet 11 inches by 21 feet three inches. Working drawing for this plan known as Design 518 may be obtained at a minimum cost from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Diligent Ant Causes Trouble in Garden

The hard-working little ant often admired for his industry work is generally up to no good.

This time of year, especially, his busy trips back and forth to the anthill are a warning to gardeners that their carefully nurtured plants are in danger.

The familiar band of little black insects threading their way across the lawn is the army of workers on a food foraging expedition. They carry food back to the colony to feed the queens and the young ants. Besides feasting on the roots and juices of your precious garden plants, they often invade houses on the ant-hill.

A house where food is left lying about is an irresistible attraction to the ant. Since he feeds mainly on sweets and fats, food of either type should be kept in closed containers.

The best way to control ants is to go right to the source—the anthill. Once the queens and the young ants are destroyed, the workers usually disappear. A granular type of ant-killer, available in shaker-top cans, will make quick work of the whole colony when sprinkled directly on the ant-hill.

Victoria Girl Writes of Visit To Relatives in Exotic Israel

NASSA RAE, 2007 Quadra, is a Victoria High graduate, spending a year in Israel on a scholarship awarded by the Zionist Association of Canada. She is writing her impressions of this new nation for the Times.

By NASSA RAE
With a swoop that caused my stomach much chagrin our Constellation descended from the clouds. My vantage point gave me the view of sand dunes margined by the deep blue of the Mediterranean. As we approached I could see colonies of white houses dotting the landscape which in turn had the green and browns of well worked farms. In fact the land was cultivated to the extent that we landed I was amazed to see the ground between the runways rich in everything from vegetables to flowers. As we alighted from the plane at Lydda into one of the most modern airports I've seen, the cheers of greetings from over-excited relatives who had been waiting 10 hours for our overdue flight, plus the intense heat on top of our wool suits, jackets and coats, gave the roaring sensation of a blast furnace.

After an hour spent in the company of customs officials, all 60 of us—students from Canada and the United States attending this course—were herded into two buses to begin our one and a half hour ride to Jerusalem.

As tired as I was from our 38-hour plane trip, the countryside held my rapt attention. We passed through an area of extensive cultivation including truck farms as well as grain fields. The road was lined with a type of broad-branched cactus which bears fruit that is hard and thorny on the outside but sweet and juicy inside. They are called sabres. Because it is believed that native born Israelis show these traits in their strong pioneer spirit, they too are called sabres. This was quickly explained to me for when I heard street vendors calling their wares I couldn't imagine a slave market in this day and age.

Suddenly new clashes with old and we were driving through Ramleh, an ancient Arab village before the war of independence, now occupied by Israelis. The streets were very narrow, made dusty by the heat of the day, and carrying an assortment of vehicles from our bus, an occasional car and bicycle, to a donkey drawn cart. Old brick walls still carried remnants of posters from the recent election as well as showing markedly the scars of heavy battle during the war.

Leaving the village I seemed to be entering another country for the terrain suddenly changed. Instead of workable land there were immovable boulders and rocks as though some vagrant had passed through bent on destruction. This type of land, I later found, was quite common in Israel and is a great drain on a country that is mainly agricultural.

We were approaching the hills of Judaea which are also composed of this rocky terrain that is next to impossible to remove. However, modern Israeli methods have improved on Arab practices and have begun a system of terracing which creates a very picturesque landscape. Tobacco is the main crop on these terraces, although reforestation is also being attempted.

At last we were entering the Jerusalem corridor, about 15 kilometers in length. This is the narrow passage between Arab territory leading up to Jerusalem. One of the most poignant moments during our trip came as we entered the corridor for we were at Bab el Wad. This is the narrowest point in the passage, and steep hills rise on either side of the road. During the war the enemy stormed down ambushing and killing a brigade carrying food and supplies to Jerusalem which had been cut off without anything. Remnants of a jeep, a truck, and a tank are left to commemorate one of the worst battles in the war.

According to Jerusalem for the first time was emotionally indescribable. As we wound our way around and up the mountains we passed deserted Arab villages and sudden deep valleys. The road was very narrow, which recalls to my mind a later experience. I was sitting beside a woman on a bus traveling from Haifa to the Valley of the Galil. The road was barely wider than the bus; we were on the edge of a steep hill, and I asked the woman what would happen in the event a vehicle came from the opposite direction. She very calmly replied, "they kiss each other." I don't know whether to take this literally because I haven't heard a different answer. However, I will trust to the knowledge that there are comparatively few cars in Israel.

Jerusalem at last!

Stone Retaining Wall For Beauty Plus Utility

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service.

Homeowners have two reasons for building stone retaining walls. One is, to solve a practical problem, such as preventing soil erosion; the other is, for beautification. Which ever the reason, consider yourself assured that YOU can build a very satisfactory stone wall without calling in a stone mason.

By far the easiest to construct are the dry flagstone walls—dry, because they are built without mortar. As such, they require no footings. There are other advantages to the dry-stone method. While lack of adequate drainage can wreck a mortared wall within a few years, walls built of loose flagstones automatically provide drainage through the joints. Also, dry walls are flexible enough to move with the soil as it freezes and thaws, while solid walls will often crack or split open at the seams. Although portions of dry stone walls may topple in winter, mending in the spring is a simple matter.

Flagstone was mentioned above. Actually, natural building stone or any quarried stone is suitable for retaining walls. According to the Building Stone Institute, your local stone company will sell you waste cuttings, reject building stone broken from quarries, or first-class building stone. The price of the last depends on transportation charges from the quarry.

Preparation and planning are important to the successful completion of a stone wall. Without it many hours of hard work may go for naught.

To determine the height and thickness required of a retaining wall, take into account the pressure that will be exerted on it by the earth behind the wall. Generally speaking, the steeper the grade behind the wall, the higher and thicker the wall should be. Explain your problem or your beautification plans to a stone supplier. He is in an excellent position to help you with your planning, including the matter of figuring out just how much stone you will require, for any given wall.

Erected without mortar or footings, dry flagstone walls are sturdy yet flexible, practical yet handsome.

The tools you'll need are a shovel, pick, mallet or hammer, spirit level and cold chisel. You will use the chisel and mallet to cut the stone—a process similar to glass cutting, and one your stone dealer will be glad to demonstrate for you. Start by laying the stones on a level bed of well-tamped earth, rather than on loose fill, which will settle. The base course will eventually bear all the weight, so make it firm and a little wider than successive courses.

If you use stones of relatively equal thickness, it will simplify keeping each course level. For variation, though, a few stones the thickness of two or three courses may be placed in the wall at random.

The Telephone Company will install concealed inside telephone wiring in your new home for the main telephone, plus wiring for any number of extension phones you may require. This is a free service.

Concealed telephone wiring must be placed in the early stages of construction. Modern building methods make it difficult to conceal phone wires once the walls of the house are covered.

For this reason, you should be sure to consult with your local telephone office while the home is still in the planning stage. The staff will be glad to arrange for free concealed telephone wiring... and they will also help you plan the other details of modern telephone service for your new home.

GARDEN QUIZ By JACK BEASTALL

Dividing Perennials

Q—Can I move some of the flowering perennials, such as doricum, pyrethrum and columbine?

A—The moving of these plants may certainly be done now, but do not disturb the root systems more than necessary. The dividing of these plants is done right after flowering, but they may be lifted now with root balls intact and transplanted.

Q—My soil is rather heavy with clay. Should I plant such small things as ranunculus and anemone now, or wait until spring?

A—In your it would be safer to wait until spring. You should lighten the planting area with coarse sand and fibrous humus to permit drainage excess moisture in early spring. The humus will also prevent baking and cracking of the clay soil as it dries out in early summer.

Alternate bearing of fruits on trees is the result of complex chemical processes in the plant itself, says the American Association of Nurserymen, resulting in a bumper-crop one year and a small crop the next. Scientists have never completely solved this problem.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Tid-bits from topics of the day.

Jack Scott of the Vancouver Sun threw a pretty good punch against Sunday sport the other day when he implied that it would be nice to keep one day of the week free for serenity, and family life.

Jack's argument, a sound one, was that family life, as our forbears knew it, is fast becoming a thing of the past, and the advent of Sunday sport has stretched the ties between parents and children.

WALKER

That's a far more realistic approach to the subject than the churchmen's stand that, if there's nothing else to do, people will attend religious service.

That to us, like to Jack, is a defeatist attitude and carries no ringing appeal for the gospel.

Sunday sports proponents say it is still a man's right to decide what he wants to do with his leisure time, that (under the proposal in Vancouver) sports will not conflict with normal church services, that it will be the financial salvation of many organizations, and that when one day of rest was decreed it didn't necessarily mean that, granted the opportunity, people shouldn't be allowed to enjoy themselves, as they see fit.

Still, as the churchmen say, given a choice, the sinners undoubtedly would sneak off to the ball field.

We liked, too, the remarks of Ted Reeve in the Toronto Telegram concerning the Dean Bandiera squabble. (Bandiera, it will be recalled, is the Stampeder accused of giving away football plays to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.)

Ted said, in effect, how silly can you get—everyone knows there are only about eight plays in football. . . . Then he later suggested that from what he saw of the Stampeder they didn't have any plays to give away.

And while we're on the subject of quotable quotes, Clem Caldwell of the Ottawa Rough Riders wraps up the pro football draft, as it affects Canadian teams, quickly and to the point: "If you want a player bad enough, you can get him."

It was a year ago this week, and the senior A men's basketball situation was such that it appeared that baths instead of basketball would be the regular Saturday night routine . . . but the club survived, except for the fact there were more bathers than basketball fans. . . . But that was last year . . . this fall there's no senior A cage sport at all . . . and this is Victoria, home of the champions, home of the Blue Ribbons, home of the Donminoes . . . shame, shame and double shame . . . little wonder that Johnny Clark and George Dennison have decided to call Alberti their winter home this season . . . but there's a great kids' church league program in the mold and with fellows like Ollie Goldsmith and Harold Turner and Basher Jackson, and others, showing the way, perhaps we'll get back on the map in time. . . .

Capsule report describing lack of concern exhibited by coach Max McNab and co-owner Kenny McKenzie of the Royals following last night's defeat:

Part one: "Good evening Max, things are going rough eh?" "Up," Max turns to fellow sitting alongside and says: Yes, that's okay with me; thanks for your trouble."

"Are you going to keep both goalies, Gatherum and Bentley?"

Max nods and heads for shower.

"Good evening Kenny."

McKenzie waves cigarette holder in greeting, then turns to players, saying: "Better hurry up; we gotta catch that plane."

End interviews.

Have the Cougars found a rushing defenceman in Bill Dobbyn? . . . it would seem the fans at Friday's hockey game voted approval of that one . . . the big fellow can pack the mail we'd like to say the same for referee Blair Peters, but his indecision has been his undoing . . . but then he's a rookie in the league . . . he may develop . . . coveting a player form last night was Jim Lackie of the Coast Seaside League Strathcona . . . the name inked on the dotted line belonged to Joseph Robbins. . .

Clippers, Drakes Meet in Puck Opener

Nanaimo Clippers and Drake Hotel will open the 1955-56 Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey League season tonight at 8:30 at Nanaimo's Civic Arena.

Monday night the two teams will meet again in the second half of the opening league twin bill at Memorial Arena. Navy and C & C Taxi will tangle in the first game at 7:30.

The league is beginning operations on schedule after a week of negotiations designed to keep the four teams intact. Navy, who wished to withdraw earlier because of service commitments that would see them lose the bulk of their best players in November for sea exercises, have agreed to stay in the league on a limited basis.

When the Navy team is at sea, Vancouver Kerrisdale will play the sailors' games in Memorial Arena, besides meeting Nanaimo in a series of contests.

TARS AT STRENGTH

Coach Reg Mylrea's tars will be a force with which to be reckoned when gathered on the ice all in one lump, and for Monday night's opener at least, will be at full strength.

In goal will be A. Millen, with L. Paget, Dave Johnson, Gus McCarthy and R. Christianson on defence. Up front, Neil Stanley, Ray Derry and Bunker Hill will work as an attacking unit. Joe Wood, Spud Merfield and M. Fraser will work together, as will Johnny Boyd, W. Sopha and D. Robinson. Utility will be B. Buhr, and R. Maud will be spare goalkeeper.

The C & C Taxi squad is in the process of building up strength, and has nine players returning from last year with four more expected to show up. A number of newcomers will also be on hand.

Practice schedule for next week follows:

Tuesday, 10-11 p.m., Drake Hotel.

Thursday, 10-11 p.m., Navy.

Saturday, 10-11 p.m., C & C Taxi.

Bev Beats Colin's Time

It wasn't for the lack of the opportunity that Cougars' Colin Kilburn didn't score on this play against New Westminster at the arena Friday night. Brilliant save was made by Royals goalie Bev Bentley on clear break by Cougar forward. Cougars won, 6-3. (Times Photo.)

Warriors Stop Flyers; Canucks Shade Seattle

By The Canadian Press

Winnipeg 4, Edmonton 2; Vancouver 3, Seattle 2
Winnipeg Warriors, new additions to the Western Hockey League this season, won their first game Friday night, while Vancouver Canucks took a 3-2 decision from Seattle Americans.

The Warriors, paced by forward Garry Blaine, defeated Edmonton Flyers, 4-2.

In a hard-checking game before 4,344 fans, Winnipeg's first hockey team in 28 years showed a good display of fast-skating and hard-checking by both forwards and defence.

TWO BY BLAINE
Blaine scored twice to lead the Warriors offensively with Bob Barlow and Eddy Mazur counting the others. Mazur had two assists and Paul Masnick three.

Flyer's goals came from Ray Kinasevich and defenceman Pete Wright.

Temper flared briefly in the third period when Jerry Melnyk of Flyers and Barry Cullen of Warriors turned to fistfights. Both received major penalties.

In Vancouver, centre Bill Wylie recovered his own rebound in the third period to give the Canucks their close victory over the Americans before 4,470 fans.

Other Vancouver goals were scored by rookie Les Lillie and Phil Maloney. Seattle marksmen were Gordon Sinclair and Eddie Dorohoy.

There's a full schedule tonight, with Edmonton the only team resting. Vancouver goes to Seattle, Victoria returns a game in New Westminster.

Winnipeg is at Calgary and Saskatoon will be host to Regina.

Cougars Give Quick Reply

Rally to Trim Royals; Macauley Gets Three

Victoria 6, New Westminster 4

By BILL WALKER

All the questions asked were answered. This was at Memorial Arena Friday night as the Cougars tripped New Westminster Royals, 6-4, in Western League hockey.

The questions had been put as coach Eddie Olson sought to find the secret that had been lost, resulting in two previous defeats.

They had been put in various form which matter not now. But the answers do.

The Doug Macauley-Colin Kilburn-Doug Anderson unit rolled on unrelenting in their attack to accumulate six points in the victory.

Macauley got three goals, Anderson two assists and Kilburn one. And Kilburn missed the net by inches on three separate occasions.

That gives the unit a total of 35 points in seven games. Olson's line changes paid off in the other three goals. Rookie centre Don Chiupka got his first as a pro; Olson scored his second of the season and Paul Strasser the winner in the third period.

On the other hand the Royals had a victory in the development stage in the first period and paid a handsome premium on that possibility 53 seconds into the second for a 2-0 lead.

That margin stood up until that saw the puck skid by the post.

Anderson did the heavy work in the corner and gave Macauley a clear shot at Bev Bentley, who has taken over for Dave Gatherum in the Royal nets until one or the other of them can earn permanent keep.

Macauley made no mistake at 13:07 and a rally was born. A penalty to Paul Roggeveen of the Royals opened the gate seconds later. And again it was Macauley who fingered the latch. He knocked in Anderson's rebound at 15:13.

Three Minutes, Three Goals

It was less than three minutes live down the misdeed, two minutes and 29 seconds in fact—from the start of the delayed Cougar assault that Chiupka connected. He tipped in a long drive by Wayne Brown at 15:36.

Undeterred at the time, the Royals struck back. Gord Fashaway, who was to get two, tied the count at 3-3 at 19:02 with Mark Marquess serving a penalty.

But Macauley wasn't through. He got his hat trick at 27 seconds of the third when he took a pass from Kilburn and rifled a high shot past Bentley into the top corner to give the Cougars their second lead.

Then enter Fashaway again. He tied it for the final time at 3:35. Ed Zeniuk was detected slashing and the Royals couldn't

CADETS RISK UNBEATEN GRID RECORD SUNDAY

HMCS Venture will put its Victoria Junior Canadian Football League undefeated streak on the line Sunday when it meets Oak Bay Drakes at Macdonald Park.

Venture took over sole possession of first place last week by thumping Royal Roads, 44-5. Drakes will be trying to better their third place spot gained with a victory over Vampires last Sunday.

In another Sunday game, Royal Roads will tangle with last-place Vampires at Creery Field, Royal Roads.

Boxing's 'New Kid' Shows Old Kid's Class

NEW YORK (UP)—Isaac Logart, Cuba's new threat to the welterweight crown, will get another television fight in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 2 as a reward for his close-but-impressive victory over middleweight contender Gil Turner there Friday night.

An outstanding welterweight—Ramon Fuentes, Virgil Atkins or Don Jordan—will be the December opponent unless the TV sponsors demand a return match.

Logart, 22, and ranked ninth among welterweight contenders, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Turner of Philadelphia, 10th ranking middleweight, before 2,500 in their nationally televised and broadcast fight. It was Isaac's first Garden main event.

Turner, 25, outweighed Logart by 5½ pounds. Gil registered 132½; Logart 147. It was Turner's heaviest poundage in six months; but manager George Katz said he needed that weight for strength, and he would not permit a return fight if the Logart camp demanded that Gil pare down.

Heavy, last-minute support for the Cuban, described as the "new Kid Gavilan" sent them into the ring at "even money." And Logart showed some of the class of the old Kid (Gavilan).

There were no knockdowns during the sevens fight. Turner suffered his third straight defeat largely because he was out-fought in the eighth and ninth rounds of the close contest. Gil's left brow suffered a minor cut, and Logart's right brow was nicked.

SOCCER PRACTICE

Tillamans of the Victoria and District Football Association's second division will hold a practice game Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at Windsor Park.

When Not to Talk Grid Wife's Secret

MONTREAL (CP)—The best way to be a success as the wife of a football coach is to have a good sense of humor and know when to keep your mouth shut.

"But I get mad sometimes," says Flonnie Walker.

The wife of Douglas (Peahead) Walker, coach of Montreal Alouettes, is as famous for her southern hospitality and good cooking as her husband is for his football strategy.

In their four-room apartment in Montreal's Cote Des Neiges district Mrs. Walker specializes in southern fried chicken and homemade fat vegetable soup although the coach's favorite meal is steak.

Flonnie always has a two-pound sirloin on hand for him.

She says her husband "lives, eats and sleeps football," and while it isn't easy being a coach's wife, "I wouldn't change for the world."

Mrs. Walker is a pleasant woman with warm brown eyes and a southern accent. She and her husband have been coming to Montreal five years, "but we always have to leave around Dec. 1 and I've never seen a real Canadian winter."

Two children by a former marriage and grandchildren in Charlotte, N.C., make it easier for Mrs. Walker to look forward to returning each year to the south.

While the coach is busy with football work Mrs. Walker finds plenty to keep her busy. Good books and writing poems occupy most of her spare time. At one time she was hostess for a hotel in North Carolina and it was then she began composing poems, such as for anniversary or birthday parties. She is also a good pianist.

She likes football immensely and knows a good deal about the game—"you can't be so close to the sport without learning something."

Asked how the coach felt after Alouettes lost the Grey Cup game last year, she said: "That's a subject that's taboo around here."

Lou, who confesses that "horses hate me," has been breeding them in California for 14 years. At long last he has one with which he will try to win the $250,000 Garden State Stakes at the Camden, N.J., Garden State Park Oct. 29.

His war cry will be: "Hay-ay-ay Bold Bazooka!"

Lou, who looks and acts in private just exactly as he does in public, figures the colt called Bold Bazooka will get him square with such members of the animal kingdom as follow horses, energetic eagles, berserk bears and violent vultures.

"There ain't an animal ever invented who can stand me, and vicer versa," Costello disclosed in an accent strictly from Paterson, N.J. "They don't like me and, while I

Hallgren to Play Winter Baseball

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arnie Hallgren, 22-year-old Vancouver athlete who won the batting title this year in the class C Pioneer Baseball League, left Thursday to play winter ball for Lacey in the Dominican Republic.

He turned down a chance to play football with B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union in order to play baseball. He will report to Milwaukee Braves' training camp next spring.

Stamps Face Deficit

Home Gates Down $40,000 This Year

CALGARY (CP)—Bondholders of Calgary Stampers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union will be asked by the executive to turn over an estimated $30,000—representing the sinking fund payments for 1954 and 1955—as a means of meeting the current indebtedness of the club.

The directors already have voted to turn over an additional $30,000, representing receipts from $100-a-plate dinners, to help reduce the club's deficit.

A special meeting of bond holders has been called for Nov. 10 to consider the resolution asking for the sinking fund money.

In a letter to bondholders, club president Ed O'Connor said the sinking fund payments plus receipts from the dinners would meet the indebtedness now faced by the club and provide a small surplus to carry on operations next spring.

He added the club had been faced by decreasing revenue from exhibition games amounting to almost $14,000 plus reduced home game receipts for the 1955 season of $40,000. He said the club had a $19,000 cash deficit at the end of the 1954 season.

Grid Coaches Favor Als, Argos

MONTREAL (CP)—The coaching staffs of Big Four Football Union teams have chosen seven members of the Montreal Alouettes and five Toronto Argonauts players to their offensive all-star squad.

Results of the poll, conducted by newspaper men here and in the other Big Four cities, were announced today in the Gazette.

The defensive team was made up of four players from Montreal, three each from Ottawa and Hamilton, and two from Toronto.

Three players—guard Bill Albright and tackle Bill Shipp of Toronto and centre Tom Hugo of Montreal—were chosen to both squads.

The offensive team was made up of: Montreal, running back Dick Shatto, Toronto fullback Pat Abruzzo, Montreal and Corky Tharp, Toronto halfbacks Albright and Herb Trivick, Montreal guards Tex Collier, Montreal and Shipp, tackle Red O'Quinn, Montreal and Al Pfeiffer, Toronto ends and Ben Rickover, Montreal, quarterback.

Defensive selections were: Doug McPherson, Montreal, and Bob Simpson, Ottawa ends; Ray Collins, Hamilton, and Shipp, tackle; Vince Scott, Hamilton, and Albright, guards; Frank Demers, Hamilton and Ottawa, and Hugo, line backer; and John Wiers, Montreal, (P) Patterson, Montreal; Lou Kusner, Hamilton, and Avatus Stone, Ottawa, half backs.

Coaches were not allowed to vote for players on their own team.

V's Trim Packers
PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Pentiction V's Friday night defeated Kelowna Packers 10-2 in the opening game of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League season here.

The V's started strong with a 3-0 lead at the end of the first period, rolled to a 7-1 lead at the end of the second.

Tarala scored four times for Pentiction while MacDonald at forward made three goals. Other Pentiction scores were made by Grant Warwick, Rucks and Kilburn.

Kelowna scoring was shared by Pyett and Jones with one each.

"The eagle had sought his lofty shelf; the crows and the ravens, sated, and heavily flighted to cliff and fir to rest before the labor of the morrow, leaving the gorging to the gulls and the ducks . . . the sing-song of wings above us told that still they came in from the sea, led by the call of food . . ."

"Le Noys, an oldtimer on the coast—fisherman, hunter, trapper, naturalist—sat brooding, puffing and interjecting: 'That's a racoon—hear that mink-huh! the bears come now, until I began to get somewhat scared.'"

"He smiled his half-Indian smile and said, 'no fear. If all the beasts from 100 miles were here, they would be too busy to interfere with us.' So it turned out."

The next morning the creek was seething with salmon and the feasting wildlife.

"The gull tribe preferred the tidbits, pecking out the eyes, as also did the crows on shore. On the far shore eagles awkwardly floundered about, digging their talons into the shoulders of the fish and bolting lumps of flesh. Then a little rest, a flounder and up into the air winged the king of birds."

"I was hit on the finger and you'd be surprised where they gave me a shot of penicillin," Costello said, patting his wallet.

But Bold Bazooka, that's another story. Lou figures this one will get him even with everything in fur or feathers.

TRUE TODAY AS IN 1921

When Salmon Spawn It's a Royal Feast

By The Canadian Press
The abundance of game attracted to a salmon run in northern British Columbia, as described in a 1921 magazine article recently reprinted, would make any hunter trigger-happy.

"The salmon were running and the birds of the air and the beasts of the field were called to a royal feast," wrote James G. Sinclair, father of the present federal fisheries minister.

The article, published originally in Edinburgh, Scotland, was reprinted in a monthly publication of the fisheries department with a note stating its description of a northern B.C. stream when salmon complete their spawning, is as accurate today as it was in 1921.

PACKED WITH FISH
Mr. Sinclair and a companion identified only as Le Noys had come upon a creek far up the B.C. coast that was filled almost solid with salmon returning from the Pacific to spawn and die. The stench from dying salmon was terrific.

"As the launch nosed up the creek discordant noises began to greet our ears and a peculiar nauseous smell kept increasing in power . . ." wrote Mr. Sinclair.

"It was no place to camp for the night. The noise of gull, kittiwake, crow, raven, eagle and duck was terrific, the stench of decaying salmon overpowering, but here was a chance to observe at first-hand that primal struggle—the chance of a lifetime."

"They camped beside the creek while bird and animal attacked the massed salmon in the shallow water. As night fell the two companions sat near the fire and tried to distinguish the cries of bird and beast."

Chisox to Answer Damage Suit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Chicago White Sox Friday were ordered to file, by October 31, an answer to a $25,000 damage suit filed against the club and its first baseman, Walt Dropo.

Judge J. Mitchell Cockrill issued the order after dismissing Dropo as a defendant in the suit. The judge ruled that "legal service on Dropo is invalid," but didn't elaborate on his decision.

The suit was filed last spring by Tom Glover, of North Little Rock. Glover charged that his 14-year-old son, Tommy, was cuffed by Dropo while attending an exhibition baseball game between the White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals.

The infielder denied the charge.

SOMETHING NEW IN HOCKEY

British Born Player Gets Coaching Berth

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Two thousand up-and-coming British hockey players are watching 32-year-old John Oxley as he takes to the ice this season as Britain's first home-grown player-coach.

Oxley, now in his eighth season with Brighton Tigers, makes hockey history in getting the coaching job, a tricky post that has previously been awarded to Canadian imports. He takes to his new task hockey experience that started in 1939 when, as a 16-year-old junior, he played for Wembley Monarchs.

"I'm confident he'll make good in the job," says Brighton's manager, Benny Lee, also an Englishman, and not to be confused with Canadian Bobby Lee, for long Brighton's playing coach.

Oxley, a husky, grinning defenceman, says: "It was a shock to me, but I'm thrilled. I only hope I can justify the management's faith in me. If I don't, it will not be for the want of trying."

In the last 10 years Oxley, now showing a trace of baldness, has scored more than 100 goals, a fair record in this country where Canadian players steal the limelight. And it wasn't long ago that Wembley-born Oxley was the famed pivotman in Wembley Lions' great SOS forward line of Sutherland, Oxley and Smith.

When he joined Brighton, he dropped back from the forward line and became a hard-playing, reliable defenceman.

SEEKS SEAL FRANCHISE

PCL Delays Decision On Greenberg's Bid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Claire Goodwin of the Pacific Coast League said Friday noon there will be no action on Hank Greenberg's proposal to obtain the San Francisco franchise "until some future date."

Goodwin told newspaper men that he had been in touch with six of the seven league directors involved. President Damon Miller of the Seals would not have a vote in the transaction.

"All indicated their interest in the Greenberg offer but desired sufficient time to study the details," Goodwin said.

"No action will be forthcoming until some future date."

Earlier Goodwin had said he presumed the directors would "want time to look into the matter very seriously."

Greenberg said Tuesday night that he would take the financially faltering franchise if the league would declare it forfeited and in return deposit $150,000 of his own money in a bank as working capital to insure operation of a team in 1956. He refused to assume obligation for the $200,000 indebtedness currently on the books beyond a promise to pay it off from future profits.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—One of Pennsylvania's three athletic commissioners makes the blunt charge that "racketeer elements" have a close association with boxing.

Alfred M. Klein, a Philadelphia lawyer, said Friday "there is a much closer association between boxing and the underworld than I ever thought of."

Klein said there is an urgent need for a congressional investigation of boxing. Meantime, the Pennsylvania athletic commission is continuing its own probe, he said, even going out of the state to get witnesses.

Professional boxing in Pennsylvania was suspended most of the summer after it was discovered that Harold Johnson, a light-heavyweight, had been drugged before a May bout he lost in the Philadelphia Arena.

"We'll find out," Klein said. "There have been others and we've investigated them," he said. "They did not occur in Philadelphia. We are endeavoring to find out if any individuals surrounding Harold Johnson were mixed up in the other doping affairs."

Klein also disclosed that Johnson wasn't the only boxer to be drugged in Pennsylvania but he gave no details.

"There have been others and we've investigated them," he said. "They did not occur in Philadelphia. We are endeavoring to find out if any individuals surrounding Harold Johnson were mixed up in the other doping affairs."

Klein, who was associated with Senator Estes Kefauver when the Tennessee Democrat conducted his investigation of underworld activities in the U.S., said he favors a congressional investigation because it affords subpoena power.

Witnesses who decline to testify, he said, can be cited for contempt and jailed.

Marciano Packed Out

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano was carried on a stretcher Friday—but it was all in fun.

The heavy weight boxing champion was the "fall guy" at a luncheon of the Circus Saints and Sinners.

Two featherweights lugged Marciano on to the stage and he then was sent over to the "ribbing table."

Speakers made a few digs at the champ but all in all he got away with a light "roasting."

HARRY SAYS TOO MUCH TOO LOUDLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Harry Sonshine, general manager of the Toronto Argonauts, has been fined $50 for calling a football official names, it was reported here Friday.

The fine was reported levied at a meeting of the Big Four board of reference in Toronto earlier this week.

Sonshine is reported to have made the remark to Sam Richardson, judge of play, during a game between Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, October 8, in Hamilton.

Chess Record

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Anderson, Canadian national chess champion, set a Canadian record at Hart House when he played 51 opponents simultaneously in five hours, defeating 45, drawing four and losing two, it was announced Friday.

The winners were Gordon Helwig and J. Jack Kagetsu.

RANGERS REAL TOUGH GUYS

Leaf Torsos Too Much So

By The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League is in what a teen-ager would describe as a crazy, mixed-up state.

Who would have thought Detroit Red Wings, first-place finishers for seven straight years, would be in fifth spot in the league race this season? Or that Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and Boston Bruins would be hanging around the top?

And how about those Rangers? They're laying on the muscle now.

It used to be that Rangers were regarded as the gentlemanly players, fellows who relied more on brains than on brawn. Not so this season.

Rangers have become tough guys and it's paying off. They have spent 80 minutes in the penalty box in five games this year. That's 24 minutes more than during the same period of the 1954-55 campaign.

New York now is in a third place tie with Black Hawks, three points behind the league-leading Montreal Canadiens.

"The Ranger get-tough policy did not come without warning. Rookie coach Phil Watson said weeks ago: 'The other teams are in for a surprise. We'll win and we'll take nothing from nobody.'"

HAWKS MEET CANADIENS
Toronto Maple Leafs are hosts to Rangers tonight while in Montreal, Black Hawks take on Canadiens. Boston visits Detroit in the other Saturday game.

There is only one Sunday game. Rangers are at home to Black Hawks.

Meanwhile, in the Leaf camp general manager Hap Day figures he can't get "guts, goals and glamour" from fat men. He has ordered two players to shed a total of eight pounds between them in two weeks—or else. The "or else," Day said, would be fines.

Defenceman Larry Cahan and right winger Ron Stewart were the two chosen to start the lard rollout. Cahan must lose five pounds to bring his weight to 200, and Stewart has to drop three pounds to 188.

Norway Faced With Ski Shortage

OSLO (AP)—Norway, the cradle of modern skiing, is facing a serious shortage of skis this season.

Modern skis are made from bickory, which Norway imports from the United States exclusively.

Due to depleted Norwegian dollar reserves, the import quota for bickory has been cut drastically.

In addition, the sharply-trimmed import licences were issued late. Due to the cuts and the delay, several ski manufacturers may be forced to close down their plants for long periods, according to an official of the Norwegian Ski Manufacturers Association.

BOMBERS ADD PLAYER
WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers have added another Canadian lineman to their line-up. Manager Bill Boivin announced Thursday that George Drumm, 24-year-old Winnipeg-born centre and linebacker, has joined Bombers and may see action Saturday in their Western Interprovincial Football Union game against Eskimos at Edmonton.

B.C. Lions Face Crucial Series

By The Canadian Press

British Columbia Lions, harried through the season by injury and weak reserves, make a last desperate bid this week-end to win a playoff berth in their sophomore year in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

NO SPECIALS

Eskimos Won't Take Chance

EDMONTON (CP)—Win or lose, Edmonton Eskimos will not sponsor any special trains to Vancouver for the Nov. 26 Grey Cup game.

M. I. Lieberman, president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union Club, said Friday "the uncertainty of the ticket situation and the unprecedented demand for tickets" are behind the decision.

In the past it was customary to guarantee all who rode the special trains a ticket to the game, whether or not they were season ticket holders.

"The demand for tickets this year from season ticket holders alone is such that we don't dare get involved elsewhere," Lieberman said.

The number of Grey Cup tickets allotted Eskimos will not be known until the playoffs are completed.

W. O. Bill Parlee, president of the Edmonton Touchdown Club, said the club will "not be involved" in a special-trains project.

MISS MAHONEY WINS

Miss Margaret Mahoney won the silver division of the monthly par competition at Colwood Golf club with a score of two up. Winner of the bronze division was Mrs. L. Harris, all square.

Not many concede the Lions a chance and their hopes could well be killed tonight when they meet the strong Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina in one of four week-end games.

A Lion loss or a victory for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in their Saturday night outing at Edmonton against the league-leading Eskimos would leave the Lions only a bare mathematical chance of a tie in points and they'd lose out on the scoring average anyway.

However, a Lion win and a Bomber loss Saturday would make Monday night's contest between the two clubs at Winnipeg the biggest of the year for both. It's the last scheduled game for B.C.

Lions, who have played 14 of their scheduled 16 games, trail the Bombers by two points going into this week-end's action. Bombers have three games remaining, and even a double loss would leave them 2 chance at that last playoff spot.

BRIGHT IN ACTION

Only two things appear certain about the Edmonton lineup Saturday—that half Dave West won't play because of a bruised knee and that Johnny Bright, hard-charging fullback who has missed two week-end swiftness of his achilles heel, will play.

Otherwise, coach Frank Pop Ivy, who left seven of his regulars at home when Esk lost 4-3 to the Riders at Regina last Saturday, is not saying whom he will dress.

Loud complaints from Winnipeg are expected if Ivy dresses and plays all his regulars against the Bombers.

Came to Watch, Stayed to Star

A young upstart and two veterans paved the way for city bowlers this week.

The youngster was Kenneth Smith, a 12-year-old lad. He showed up at Capital City decked out in a scouting uniform and prepared to watch his parents display their athletic prowess.

Ken ended up by rolling on a team to fill in for a missing player and was the general attraction as he racked up games of 240, 253, 247 for a 740 fivepin series.

He has, however, a secret for his amazed teammates of one night. He's a second-year member of the Junior King Pin Club and sports a 189 average.

The veterans were on the other side of the fence—they were tenpinners.

Dave Williams, who recently pounded out a 712 practice series, rolled the highest single game in league action here this season when he scored 255 for a new record in the Strathcona commercial section.

Bill Norris proved the steadiest with games of 193, 212 and 209 for a 614 triple in Gibson's senior tens.

In Capital City major fives, Harry Cool, 815 (304); Phil Smith, 768; Bill Stevenson, 711; Ron Hansen, 718, and Jean Foster, 707, led the pack.

M. Hallam, 744; Lou Guidi, 731 (351); Charlie Bennie, 729; Gordie Ball, 722; Ted Bowcott, 701, and George Robertson, 700, had other highs.

At Gibson's, Jerry Crawford, 796 (328); Harry Cool, 796 (312); Wilf Smith, 789; J. Walker, 788 (314); Phil Smith, 781; Eric Ware, 767; Sheldon Nipp, 752 (305); Sue Hilton, 734 (316); M. Quissy, 731; E. Parker, 729; Bob Brenner, 728; Dave Lowe, 726 (311); Slim Wooley, 726; Jack Goldie, 725; D. Jenkins, 722 (311); D. MacPherson, 720, and George Brown, 715, led the way.

Harold Gent shot a 710 triple and Sid Jenkins totaled 704.

In Strathcona tens, alley-boss Roy Begg led with a 593 total, followed by Williams, 565; Cee Dixon, 557, and Bill Stevenson at 550. George Hall, 211; Begg, 210; Dixon, 209, and Fred Barker at 200 racked up notable singles.

Other than Norris, Erle Radminton, 598; Henry Hawkins, 595; Cee Dixon, 593; Len Parsons, 562; Ken Munn, 558, and Begg and Bill Day, 552, had other leading threes. Radminton, 226, 219; Dixon, 225; Hawkins, 222; Roy Bridger, 217, and Nick Howard, 211, 210, notched top singletons.

George Brown, 590; Wilbur Webb, 571, and Ed Simmons, 554, showed the way in the commercial section. Webb, 227; Simmons, 225, and G. Wells, 210, claimed high singles.

Jack Hobby was the big noise for the men in mixed action. Jack bounced the 10 pin off the cushion, felling the 7 pin to spare up the bed posts and win himself a badge of recognition from the ABC.

He was also high for the men with a 550 total; Marge Beane, 523, and Jean Gray, 505, leading the women.

Jessie Howard totaled 524 and A. Dyke pounded out a 500 series to go to the fore in women's major action.

Invention Speeds Log Loading At Nanaimo Lakes Operation

By JOHN MACNAUGHTON
Times Ladysmith Correspondent

LADYSMITH—Visitors to the Nanaimo lakes operation of the Comox Logging and Railway Company are intrigued by a unique loader which loggers have dubbed "Joe's Jaw," for want of an official name.

Designed by Joe Cliffe, veteran logging superintendent of the company, and fabricated in the company's Ladysmith shops, this novel piece of equipment has cut loading time in half for large logs and has made it possible to load small logs five times as fast as they had been loaded previously by conventional methods.

The machine consists of three slotted steel sections which rotate on an axle set just under the water in the booming ground at First lake. When the axle is rotated, the three sections swing down so that the slot or jaw is half under water and half out. Boom men then guide logs toward the slots and when they are positioned a hook comes up under them and pulls them into the jaw, where they sit parallel to the axle.

HELD SECURELY

The machine is then rotated so that the jaws point up, cables are then attached and the logs are lifted onto the waiting flatcars in the conventional manner.

Main advantage of the device is that loaders can work with added speed and safety from a permanent platform, and not have to fumble under water while perched on a wobbling log. Small logs can be loaded in bunches with cable slings. Previously they either had to be lifted one at a time with tongs, or slings had to be worked under a few logs from each end.

CHEAP BOOMING

Logs are hauled by rail to Ladysmith for booming.

This is not the first log-handling invention produced by employees of the company. The log-handling installations used here and at Royston, that cut booming costs to 25 per cent of normal and made towing profitable for the company for the first time, were designed and built by Bill Eastman, Dunc Thomson, and the late Ab Stewart of the Courtenay operation.

Ferry Service

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY—Ferry service which links Sidney with Anacortes in Washington was suspended on Sunday for the season. Many residents of Sidney and district watched its seasonal termination with regret for regular arrival of the ships means a very great deal to the economy of not only this immediate district but to the whole south of Vancouver Island.

The ferry operators made no mistake in prolonging the season's service this year. The boats continued to operate until October 16, two full weeks longer than usual. And they carried very heavy traffic to and from Sidney during the last two weeks. We are quite certain that the ships will operate at least this late in the season in 1956, and possibly longer. With a slightly earlier start being made every year and service continuing a little later each season, the day may not be too far distant when the company will decide to operate a year-around service. This would be welcome by all residents of lower Vancouver Island, we are certain.

Royal Touch to Autumn

THE COWICHAN LEADER—Warm October days, bringing a satisfying harvest thanksgiving, have coincided with a memorable occasion for many members, past and present, of the Canadian Scottish Regiment.

The visit to V.I. of H.R.H. Princess Mary and the first inspection by her of her own regiment in Canada have done much to strengthen military and royal tradition.

There was a large representation of district residents, senior and junior officers of World War II days, and a full display of reservist strength for the colorful ceremonies in Victoria on Sunday, with the weatherman at his very best.

District reserve officers bore the regimental colors and, besides reservists, there was perhaps the smartest cadet group on parade, also from Cowichan area. It was a turnout of which all could be proud. Small cities and centres of Vancouver Island have every reason to throw out their chests for the impression their men of the Scottish left with their own colonel-in-chief, aunt of the present Queen.

A Worthy Move

WEST COAST ADVOCATE—Residents of the northern portion of Vancouver Island will wholeheartedly endorse the action of the B.C. Power Commission in taking the initiative to settle the long-standing Buttle Lake issue. This week the Commission awarded a contract for the logging and clearing of the lakeshore in preparation for flooding at a later date when the all-clear signal has been given.

Their further action of expropriating four mining claims in order to carry out their projected clearing and dam construction prior to increasing the height of water, would appear rather high-handed, but it has only been done after almost every other expedient had been tried.

Few places have the facilities or the possibilities of making provision for a greater electrical energy supply as Vancouver Island, and in its creation will provide wider scope for recreation and vacation possibilities. The project at Buttle Lake will for the first time open up this great beauty spot and make it available to the people of Vancouver Island as well as tourists.

MEDICAL BRAINS WASTED, UBC RESEARCHER CLAIMS

NANAIMO (CP)—A three-point plan to increase Canada's contribution to mental health research was proposed by Dr. W. C. Gibson, UBC research department, in a lecture to Nanaimo high school students.

Dr. Gibson said he hoped the time would come when medical students would be subsidized during their summer vacations so they could help in research.

He said "brains" were being wasted during the summer because students "had to wait on tables."

Historic Hall At Chemainus To Be Scrapped

CHEMAINUS—MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., Chemainus Division, will call tenders shortly for the demolition of the Community Centre small hall.

The building, long a community eyesore and a fire hazard as well, has, according to company officials, "outlived its purpose" except to provide accommodation for a janitor.

Although the small hall is to be torn down and the site cleared, the large hall will continue to provide ample facilities for sports and other recreations.

Cost of renovating the dilapidated building, part of which was the original club building erected in 1896, was found to be excessive. Newer halls in the community provide similar accommodations for meetings, and with more modern facilities. Rentals at the hall have dropped off to nothing in the past two years.

DANCES POPULAR

The original community hall was built by volunteer labor in the summer of 1896. Opening dance was held on New Year's Eve, 1897. At the turn of the century, the hospital dances, staged in the hall attracted people from all over the island, the E & N running special trains to and from Victoria to transport them to Chemainus.

Facilities at the small hall later were expanded but it gradually became too small for the needs of a growing community, and in 1910 the Victoria Lumber & Mfg. Co. Ltd. built a bigger hall.

At one time, H. R. MacMillan was president of the Recreation Club. The club has been re-organized many times since then with most of the activities being carried out in the large hall, as they are today.

CRYPTIC WORDS
Do you know any Gloomy Gus-type characters? Douglas Jerrold once expressed an interesting thought about persons who seem to enjoy being miserable. It's presented in the form of a substitution cryptogram for you to solve.

"RXNQ GQXGTQ FHQ RX VNRZ XY CTT-TWDM KLK KLQZ HWB LTV-EFO KN NQKQ CK."

Hint: Keep an eye peeled for double-letters. They occur twice in the crypt above. One pair is a set of vowels; the other, consonants. Common double-letters are oo, mm, tt, ee, ll, etc.

YOUR WHAT?
To have the best of health, you are advised by doctors to develop and use your caput to top efficiency. What's that?

Answer: Your head.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?
What's the surest way of doubling your money?

TWISTER
Repeat rapid-aloud: Ugly Ollie ogled Olga eyeing gurgling gargoyles.

One bloke's back brake broke. Theophilus Thistle sifted.

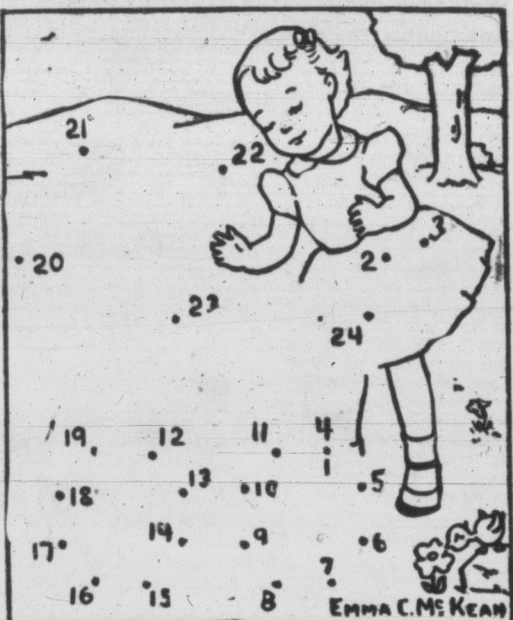

RIDDLE
Why is a straw hat like a kiss over the telephone?

Answer: Because it is out of the hat.

IT'S YOUR MOVE
Things are fairly even at the stage of the checker game diagrammed above. Black has one more king, but it's White's move next and White, moving up the board, can win in four moves.

FIND THE WORD
I am a word of five letters. Multiply my fifth by two and you have my third. Divide my first by 20 and you have my third. Divide my third by five and you have my second or fourth.

Answer: The word is evil, spelled in backward order.

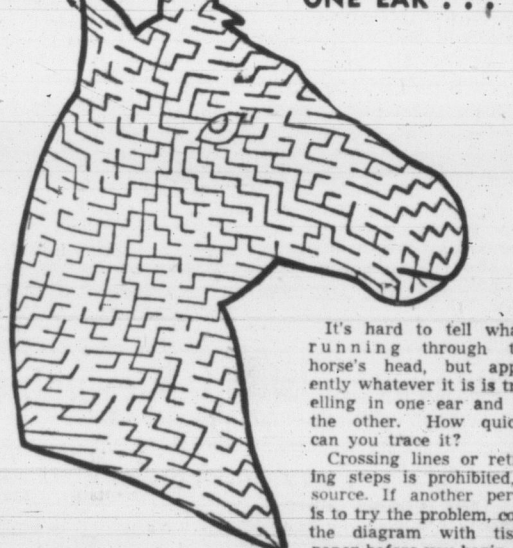

Dotograph Problem for Juniors

Something has occupied Alice's attention, but it seems to have disappeared. Can you restore the missing object to complete the picture? To do so, draw connecting lines from dot 1 to dot 24 consecutively. Where two numbers are beside one dot, use the dot for both.

Riddle: What flower's name suggests an animal's mistake?

Answer: A cowslip is "one" flower.

IT GOES IN ONE EAR...

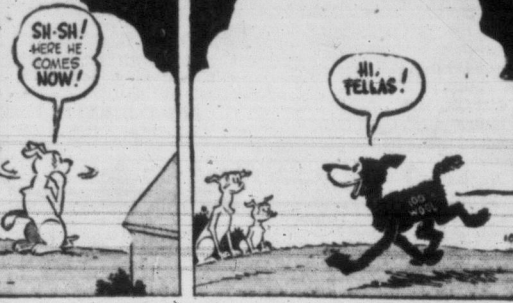

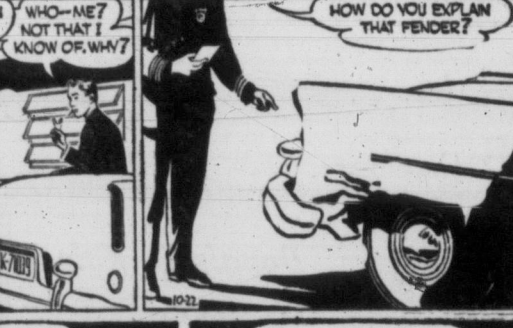

It's hard to tell what's running through this horse's head, but apparently whatever it is is travelling in one ear and out the other. How quickly can you trace it?

Crossing lines or retracing steps is prohibited, of course. If another person is to try the problem, cover the diagram with tissue paper before you begin.

Big Steel Gains Forecast in U.S.

Wall Street Betting on Large Earnings; Anticipates Dividends Will Be Improved

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Wall Street is betting on sparkling earnings statements for the big steel companies and there appears to be unanimity in anticipating that dividends will be improved.

United States Steel has its meeting after the close next Tuesday. Bethlehem meets after the close on Thursday. Each will issue the third quarter and nine-month earnings report and act on dividends.

A situation similar to the present prevailed in late July. The market was rising on hopes of big things to come from the steels. The averages weren't much different then than they are now.

HIGH EARNINGS

From July 20 to the 25th, industrials rose nearly 12 points. Then came the reports—good earnings but little candy for the stockholders.

By Aug. 4 the market was down to a level below where it closed on July 19—all the steel-inspired gains having been lost.

United States Steel was the big disappointment when it reported on July 26. The earnings were high—$3.10 a share for the first half, against $1.56 in 1954, but the company saw fit to keep the dividend where it had been, namely 50 cents a share on the stock split two for one June 2.

Bethlehem did a little better than "big steel." It declared a $1.75 dividend compared with $1.50 paid in the previous quarter. Its earnings for the first half rose to $3.25 a share from the $3.77 of 1954.

NO SET PATTERN

U.S. Steel paid 75 cents a share continuously on its common from Dec. 9, 1950 to the end of 1954. This year it paid two $1 dividends on the old stock. The July 26 dividend of 50 cents was the initial on the split stock. The dividends so far work out at $1.50 a share on the new stock or $3.00 on the old which is the total paid in all of 1954.

Bethlehem paid $5.75 a share in 1954 and $4 a share in 1953. Both companies Steel and Bethlehem—when they paid extra or special dividends in the past—made the declarations either in the last quarter of the year or the first quarter of the next year. There is no set pattern.

Hence it is pointed out Wall Street could be just as wrong as right.

Reported to involve a sum in excess of $600,000, the 311-acre "Gold Bar farm" owned and operated by Claude Gallinger and located adjacent to the city limits, has been purchased by MacLab Construction Co. Ltd.

The purchasers are understood to be financed largely by European capital.

Mr. Gallinger said he will continue to operate farms at To-field and Nanton, Alta.

with its guesses as it was last July.

This time the experts who do the predicting hold that the steel companies and many other companies will be particularly generous with their year-end declarations to maintain confidence in the general economic situation.

With steel there's one more consideration that few talk about. That is the belief the companies may divert more earnings into expansion since they've been denied fat tax writeoffs on building new steel ingot capacity.

Company spokesmen, confident of winning final government approval for the $162,000,000 project, announced that surveys for the 650-mile line were almost completed and that right-of-way and the necessary pipe had been acquired.

The line will extend from Fort St. John, B.C., to this city, with a spur running into the United States south of Huntington, B.C. Through an agreement with the Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp., of Houston, Tex., the project will be made economically feasible through sale of gas to the American firm for distribution throughout the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Final approval still was being awaited from the U.S. Federal Power Commission for import of the gas into the United States, but officials of Westcoast said they were so confident of winning a franchise they had already ready-embarked on construction of the line.

British industry was slated to play an important role in the mammoth undertaking.

A $12,000,000 contract had been awarded the South Durham Iron and Steel Co., of England, to supply 75,000 tons of 30-inch pipe for the line. The English firm was thus to supply approximately one-third of all the pipe required for the line.

Construction of the pipeline will mark another milestone in the tremendous oil and natural gas boom which has swept northwestern Canada during the past decade. The line from the Peace River district to the Pacific Coast will be matched by a similar line from Alberta to eastern Canada, to be constructed by Trans-Canada Pipelines Ltd.

Westcoast, a company sponsored by Pacific Petroleum and the Sunway Mid-Continent Oil Co., will tap the Peace River block of northern British Columbia and Alberta, which contains estimated natural gas reserves of more than four trillion cubic feet.

Outbreak of the First World War relieved imminent suppluses and boosted North American output. The ensuing peace saw European nations step up their own production despite abundant supplies of better quality and more economical wheat overseas.

Exports fell and carryovers rose to about 1,000,000,000 bushels in Canada, Australia, Argentina and the United States by 1933. The next year, these countries agreed in principle with the provisions of the first International Wheat Agreement to an acreage reduction of 15 per cent.

The North American drought and a bad Australian crop intervened. Again in 1938, plans were afoot for a second agreement incorporating acreage cuts, export quotas and an "ever-normal granary" governed by minimum and maximum stocks.

The Second World War ended that. The next step was the Washington inter-Allied conference convened at the request of the United Kingdom in 1941. Envisaged were tighter forms of the regulations previously favored, but the U.K., the world's largest importer, stuck at the prices clause.

In 1942, an international wheat council was established. Agreement in principle was reached on acreage restrictions, export quotas, minimum and maximum carryovers and a minimum export price—all to come into force at the end of the war.

Pacific Pipeline Approval Expected

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Westcoast Transmission Company moved into high gear today on its pipeline project to bring natural gas from the Peace River country to the Pacific Coast.

Company spokesmen, confident of winning final government approval for the $162,000,000 project, announced that surveys for the 650-mile line were almost completed and that right-of-way and the necessary pipe had been acquired.

The line will extend from Fort St. John, B.C., to this city, with a spur running into the United States south of Huntington, B.C. Through an agreement with the Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp., of Houston, Tex., the project will be made economically feasible through sale of gas to the American firm for distribution throughout the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Final approval still was being awaited from the U.S. Federal Power Commission for import of the gas into the United States, but officials of Westcoast said they were so confident of winning a franchise they had already ready-embarked on construction of the line.

British industry was slated to play an important role in the mammoth undertaking.

A $12,000,000 contract had been awarded the South Durham Iron and Steel Co., of England, to supply 75,000 tons of 30-inch pipe for the line. The English firm was thus to supply approximately one-third of all the pipe required for the line.

Construction of the pipeline will mark another milestone in the tremendous oil and natural gas boom which has swept northwestern Canada during the past decade. The line from the Peace River district to the Pacific Coast will be matched by a similar line from Alberta to eastern Canada, to be constructed by Trans-Canada Pipelines Ltd.

80 Nations Invited To UN Wheat Parley

By ARCH MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Ghosts of past wheat talks will lurk in the background when the United Nations wheat conference opens at Geneva Oct. 26 to discuss the latest ills of this major world trading commodity.

Those of the 80 invited countries electing to attend will be concerned with a 50-year-old problem. Still sought is machinery effectively stabilizing a cereal crop whose abundance exceeds effective demand.

The variety of systems evolved at previous conferences have either failed to draw support from certain important wheat countries, or been frustrated by other events before implementation.

Wheat's feast-and-famine record during the 20th century had been influenced by the opening of virgin farm lands in Canada, Argentina and Australia before 1914. Two world wars, drought and high-cost wheat production in European importing countries have all left their marks.

5.30: Channel 2: Rin Tin Tin makes his debut on the Canadian channel at this hour.

Young Rusty and his dog Rinty are all that is left after the Indian massacre.

6.30: Channel 11: In spite of the boisterous star gives husband Alan Livingston credit for inducing her to try TV again.

"Since I married Alan I've regained confidence," she said. "He felt I should do a show that I know how to do—numbers from my nightclub act and my own songs."

"He wants me to feel I haven't failed. He felt I did not have the right material before, and there was no point in my leaving TV on a bad note. He wants me to prove to the world that 'Satins and Spurs' wasn't all my fault."

As Betty points out, TV has mended its ways since that first "spectacular." Now tried-and-true tunes are used. Or, when new tunes are written for a show, such as "Our Town," they are released weeks in advance on records so the public can get used to them.

"I hope people will be pulling for me and be on my side," said Betty. "I want them to understand this is not a 'spectacular' in or color. It's only an hour show, and not a big epic."

"If I stink this time, I'll be awfully sick inside. I'm not the greatest singer in the world. But I give my heart to the people—so I'm sure the people, if not the critics, will enjoy the show."

Kraft Caramels

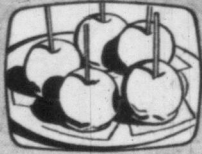

Here's the actual step-by-step technique for making caramel apples as featured on the famous Kraft Television Theatre. Let the kids help! It's so simple!

One 14-oz. bag of Kraft Caramels; 2 tbsp. water; 4 or 5 medium apples. Heat caramels and water in top of double boiler, stir until caramels melt and sauce is smooth.

Wash and dry apples thoroughly. Stick a wooden skewer into stem end of each and dip in hot caramel sauce until surface is coated. Scrape excess sauce from bottoms.

Put finished apples on waxed paper and chill in the refrigerator a few minutes. When the caramel coating sets, your delicious Kraft Caramel Apples are ready to serve.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Bernie Ryall, who keeps body and soul together with the odd combination of producing shortbread and organ music, dropped by the office yesterday with the best of intentions. And succeeded in leaving me in the depths of despair.

For Bernie brought with him a copy of the Times of London, dated Thursday, Nov. 7, 1805.

He thought I'd be interested, because it carried the first news of the battle of Trafalgar (see yesterday's edition of The Times of Victoria) and indeed I was.

But my interest couldn't prevent my plunging into the aforementioned depths of despair. If you were an employee of the Times of Victoria, as I am, you'd be unhappy, too. Because our Times just can't measure up to the standards set by the Times of London—circa 1805.

Do our classified ads carry the power, imaginative writing, and intrigue of ads such as this, which appeared in 1805? I will answer my own question, no, then let you judge:

"LORD MAYOR'S DAY—Five guineas will be given to any person who may have THREE TICKETS of admission to Guildhall on that day. Address to W.S., at Mr. Twalle's, Bunch of Grapes, Dowgate Hill."

Or the dignified approach of this:

"TUITION"—A gentleman of responsibility, a Master of Arts and Fellow of a College, having some leisure, is desirous of being engaged with one or more pupils in a family, or in any other way if more convenient. Address, Gloucester Coffee House, Piccadilly."

Or the simple, straightforward approach of this:

"WANTED by a single gentleman, BOARD AND LODGING; the lodging to consist of one bedroom and two sitting-rooms, unfurnished... the advertiser desires nothing out of the common way."

"This day is published... a PORTRAIT OF LORD NELSON, from a picture painted by J. Hoppner, R.A., for his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales."

"To be had of Messrs Colnaghi, Cockspur Street, Haymarket, and at the engravers, 62 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury."

Not only in the field of advertising does the Times of Victoria fail to measure up to the Times of London, circa 1805.

Did you ever, in the Times of Victoria, read such an arresting, interest-packed, newsworthy sentence such as this? "Yesterday morning, at nine o'clock, the Duke of YORK arrived at Windsor."

All I can say to Bernie Ryall is, I am glad the Times of Victoria is putting up with the likes of me. I'd never have made the grade with the Times of London—circa 1805.

Flier Returns to Cadet 'Roost'

What do you think of the air cadet movement? Nothing but words of praise and enthusiasm come when FO A. D. Wallis is asked the question. He has good reason to be an air cadet booster, the Comox-based flier pointed out when he returned for a visit with his Kinsmen Air Cadet Squadron Friday. Shown chatting with two present-day members of squadron, Charles Maclean, left, Oak Bay High, and David Thom, right, Victoria High School. Wallis joined Kinsmen air cadets in 1945 and through the squadron he took the following steps: In 1946 he won scholarship which enabled him to learn to fly; in 1947 he won exchange trip to Great Britain; in 1948 he won scholarship to Royal Roads three services college from which he graduated in 1952. He then joined regular RCAF.

A $300 EASTERN STAR SCHOLARSHIP has been won by UBC student, Elaine Hadfield, 20, 2890 Cadboro Bay Road. The award is made annually to the dependent of an Eastern Star member who earns highest standing in second or third-year studies at the university. Miss Hadfield is a graduate of Oak Bay High and later attended Victoria College. She has recently been in hospital here for an operation but plans to return to UBC shortly.

Union May Prosecute

Yarrows Ltd. may be prosecuted by one of its shipyard unions if settlement of an argument over payroll deductions cannot be reached peacefully.

Permission to prosecute the shipbuilding firm for failure to honor a written assignment of wages was granted this week by labor relations board to Shipwrights, Joiners and Caulkers' Industrial Union (CIO-CCL), Local 9.

A union spokesman said today it is hoped talks will continue toward an end favoring employees, thus avoiding a court decision.

The union charges the shipyard refused to deduct from wages a sum covering contributions to a group insurance plan entered into by the union.

Employers contend the sum does not fall in the category of union assessments, which according to the Labor Relations Act includes fees and dues.

If a court ruled such assignment is proper within the meaning of the act, it is conceivable that employers may be required through union check-off orders to make other wage deductions to cover employee contributions to diverse group schemes entered into by the union.

Four Injured When Cars Hit; Motorcyclist Hurt in Crash

Four persons required hospital treatment following an early morning James Bay accident at Oswego and Michigan.

Reported in "good" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital today were Helen Marshall, 30, 2915 Prior, shock and bruises, and Leonard Glancy, 26, 1165 Roslyn, multiple lacerations.

Viola Roger, 44, 3916 Doncaster, and Rena Besler, 30, 507 Harbinger, were treated for cuts and bruises and later discharged from hospital.

Police said the accident occurred at about 1.25 a.m. when an auto driven north on Oswego by Herbert S. Wetherell, 1031 McLeure, collided with a car proceeding east on Michigan and driven by Charles E. Luxton, 1257 Haultrain.

Damage to both cars was heavy. Motorcyclist Adrianus Paalvast, 1270 Vista Heights, sustained leg injuries when his machine collided with the rear of a car at Johnson and Cook at about 8.25 p.m. Friday.

Driver of the car was Leslie C. Bray.

Damage estimated at $700 was caused to a car driven north on Glanford by Raymond Arthur Paine, 4049 Townsend, early this morning. The car

Discrimination Charged at Parley Here As Civil Servants Seek Cabinet Talks

Delegates to the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention Friday placed wage demands in a "top priority" category.

In a resolution which charged that "most government employees have not received any increase in pay for over three years" the convention asked that "negotiations for pay increases be given top priority at further meetings with the cabinet."

The same resolution claimed "wages and salaries of government workers are well below those earned outside the B.C. provincial government services."

The convention, which ends tonight, is being held in a friendlier atmosphere toward the provincial government. There has been no talk of strike action, as was threatened at last year's convention at Nanaimo.

EFFICIENCY PRAISED

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who addressed delegates Friday on behalf of Premier Bennett, told them the great efforts of the civil service "are appreciated not only by the Legislature and the government, but generally by the rank and file of B.C. people."

He praised the civil service for its efficiency. Mr. Bonner made a vague reference to the civil servants' continuing demands for wage boosts.

"The maximum amount of public monies must be expended on basic services in this province," he said, "such as roads, schools, rail development and hospitals."

"Without that maximum effort being made, the expansion of this province will not flourish," said Mr. Bonner.

Many delegates interpreted his remarks as a warning the government does not intend granting across-the-board wage increases. A few minutes before Mr. Bonner spoke, the government came under heavy fire from R. K. Gervin, Vancouver, vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress for B.C.

DISCRIMINATION Mr. Gervin said the civil service is being "unjustly discriminated against" in not being granted collective bargaining rights enjoyed by other workers.

"Such discrimination has no place in our democratic society, and I appeal again to our cabinet ministers to end this injustice," said Mr. Gervin, looking down the head table to Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, Health Minister Eric Martin, Works Minister W. N. Chant, and Mr. Bonner.

Mr. Gervin lauded the government for its announced public works program aimed at levelling off seasonal winter unemployment in the province.

Carl Hauck, president of the BCGEA, in a brief speech, apologized to Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, and Attorney-General Robert Bonner, for remarks he made to them at the 1954 convention.

Mr. Hauck also told delegates "we have had a good year, and we can't deny it."

REJECTION The convention turned down a resolution asking for government permission for civil servants to take off-duty employment. The resolution was rejected without a dissenting vote.

Another resolution repeated the BCGEA's annual demand for semi-monthly payment of wages. The resolution was backed up with reference to the fact the laws of B.C. call for twice-monthly wage payments, and also that the federal government now pays its employees twice a month.

VI Building Hits $160,000,000

Survey Sees More Coming

Heavy construction projects now under way on Vancouver Island are valued at $160,000,000—and millions of dollars worth more are in the planning stage.

The program represents the biggest building boom in the Island's history.

The $160,000,000 figure has been arrived at by a Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council survey.

Secretary-treasurer Clifton H. Parker said today:

"The main feature is that most of this work can be continued over the winter months, doing a lot for our seasonal unemployment problem."

He predicted the 2,500 tradesmen employed in heavy construction work today will be more than doubled next spring.

Mr. Parker, who also is business representative for Local 115, International Union of Operating Engineers, said he expects a minimum of 500 operating engineers (hoist and portable machinery operators) employed this winter on the island—not to mention other tradesmen.

MOST EVER

"Right now we have the most men ever employed at one time as far as our trade or any other trade is concerned," Mr. Parker said.

Projects to come include a pulp mill at Crofton; bridge, highway construction and paving jobs and possibly a Vancouver Island west coast pulp mill.

Prospects are favorable, he said, for a multi-million-dollar expansion by Miles International Transport in connection with Argonaut Mines at Campbell River.

Also at Campbell River will be the two-year federal government contract to remove Ripple Rock in Discovery Channel.

Presently, there are projects underway at Ladore Falls, where Northern Construction and J. W. Stewart are completing a B.C. Power Commission project; at Lower Campbell Lake where the largest power dam on the Island is being built by the Power Commission by Dawson-Wade & Co. and Macco Construction; at Comox where Maxwell Construction is completing airport runway extension as part of a $40,000,000 national defence project; at Duncan Bay, near Campbell River, where B.C. Bridge & Dredge Co. is working at a $30,000,000 expansion project for Elk Falls Co.

Other projects are underway at Port Alberni, where Dominion Construction is building a $35,000,000 expansion for Macmillan & Bloedel; various highway bridges on the Island from Nanaimo River; at Port Alice an $8,000,000 paper plant is being built for Alaska Pine; at Englewood a 30-mile railroad to carry ore and logs is being built by Highway Construction; logging companies are building roads from Sproat Lake to Tofo, from Campbell River to the west coast and from Jordan River to Port Renfrew; highways department has paving contractors working from Lake Cowichan and Nanaimo, and Campbell-Bennett Co. has two contracts for the trans-Canada highway over the Malahat.

He has just completed a tour of B.C. power sites, and in Vancouver Friday said the proposed diversion of the Columbia into the Fraser could be a serious economic matter to the northwest. This proposal was made several months ago by the federal government.

Such a development would halt power developments of the U.S. Northwest.

He proposed a "compromise," stating "it is up to your country to be reasonable."

SENATOR NEUBERGER

Canada Must Be Reasonable—Neuberger

The U.S. Congress should give immediate consideration to possible future joint developments between Canada and the United States, on the Kootenay and Columbia rivers, Oregon's Senator Richard L. Neuberger said here today.

"It is my own personal thought that congress should take part in it," he said.

The Oregon Democrat is on a one-day visit to Victoria to confer with Attorney-General Robert Bonner on feasibility of mutual hydro developments involving B.C. power.

He is here "to get your government's viewpoint, not to give mine. My business is to learn, not to tell."

He will report his findings to the U.S. Senate interior committee.

WILLING TO PAY

Nub of the situation is that the Pacific Northwest states are pressing for downstream rights, for which they are willing to pay, for hydro power originating in B.C.

"Storage sites on the upper Columbia would be of mutual benefit. We hope to work this out," he said.

He foresaw no future trouble in U.S. use of B.C. power despite the suggestion of increased industrialization in this province.

"There are no projects in the U.S. that are going to hurt anything in Canada," even in the future, the senator said.

Teachers Hear Prison Warden At Convention

District students may be apprehensive about a forthcoming convention of Greater Victoria teachers—main speaker at opening ceremonies will be Hugh G. Christie, warden at Oakalla prison farm.

His subject will be "Modern Correctional Work."

The Greater Victoria Teachers' Association convention will be spread over three days—Nov. 3, 4 and 5. The program will be conducted at two schools, Oak Bay Junior High and Central Junior High.

Mr. Christie's address will be to a public meeting in Oak Bay Junior High auditorium at 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 3.

Friday there will be section meetings and a convention banquet at Central Junior High and a dance in the evening at Crystal Garden.

Saturday, business sessions will be conducted at Oak Bay Junior High School. There are about 350 teachers in the GVTA.

Simpson Store Plan Expected At Early Date

Simpson Sears Ltd. plans to enter the Victoria retail merchandising field are expected to be made known with the arrival here shortly of vice-president Gordon Reid from Toronto. Mr. Reid is accompanied on his western tour by Frank Conley, chief architect responsible for the design of the company's stores.

Simpson Sears Ltd. have purchased eight acres on the site of the proposed Lansdowne-Richmond shopping centre where the company plans to erect a big department store of the modern suburban type. The acreage will provide unlimited paved space for the parking of cars.

Actual location of the store will be at the intersection of Richmond and Newton.

HOUSING PROJECT

The development will be linked with a federal-provincial housing project involving 130 building lots on the former Lansdowne airfield property bounded by Lansdowne, Richmond, Newton and the Saanich-Oak Bay border.

Tenders for the sale of these lots will close with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation on Oct. 31. It was stated today by R. J. Killen, assistant manager.

Apartment altogether from the acreage reserved for housing and the eight acres owned by Simpson-Sears, an additional 10 acres will be developed as a shopping centre the size of which has never before been attempted in the suburban areas.

The entire housing and shopping development will be fully serviced, 50 per cent of this work already having been completed.

The housing lots will be sold at cost, all serviced, will run from $1,000 to $1,500 each.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me the names of the city churches classified as Anglican? J.F.

A. The Anglican churches in Greater Victoria are: Christ Church Cathedral, St. John's (successor of the old "Iron Church"), St. Saviour's, St. Mary's (Oak Bay), St. Paul's (Esquimalt), St. Barnabas, St. Luke's (Cedar Hill), St. Mark's, St. Mathias, St. Alban's, St. Martin's, St. George and St. David's. These are all parishes of the Diocese of British Columbia, which is coterminous with Vancouver Island and adjacent islands.

This diocese is one of the dioceses of the Anglican Church of Canada, whose 28 dioceses extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific, including Newfoundland, and from the U.S. border to north of the Arctic Circle, and whose complete autonomy is exercised through its great General Synod. The church in Canada is part of the Anglican Communion throughout the world. The Pan-Anglican Congress of that communion was held in Minneapolis in September, 1954, attended by Archbishop Sexton and clerical and lay delegates from this diocese.

Q.—When was the Statute of Westminster, basis of Canada's relations with Great Britain passed?—R.P.

A.—It was passed by the parliament of Canada in December, 1931.

Untiring Worker Of Early Church Mourned Here

Mrs. Arthur Edward Roberts, widow of a former Victoria minister, and herself an untiring worker in the interests of the United Church, died in Vancouver Friday evening, in her 80th year.

Both before and after her marriage, she devoted much of her time to church work, with a special interest in young people. The Junior Methodist club of Victoria West United Church was named in her honor.

Born in Maitland, N.S., she moved to Victoria with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George Monteth, before the turn of the century. As a member of the Young People's Association of Victoria West Church, she helped make it one of the strongest Y.P.A.'s in western Canada.

After her marriage, Mrs. Roberts assisted her husband with his work at Victoria West and Metropolitan in Victoria, First United in Chilliwack and Turner Institute in Vancouver.

After Mr. Roberts retired from the active ministry to become church officer of the Vancouver Province, they kept up their interest in the church as active lay members of Trinity United.

Mrs. Roberts is survived by five sons, Dr. George A. C. Roberts, Chilliwack; Aubrey F. Roberts, Los Angeles; and Cecil Monteth, Victoria; one sister, Mrs. Guy T. Temple, Vancouver; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday from the Grandview Funeral Chapel, Vancouver.

TALE OF DEVOTED WORK

Mesachie Lake's 'Stone' Church Constructed Mostly of Wood

By JO HEALY

There is a small and lovely church that stands in the lumber town of Mesachie Lake in the Cowichan Valley, Vancouver Island. Paradoxically, it is known with affection as the little "Stone" church, although its construction is primarily of wood.

When Carlton Stone, founder of the flourishing Hillcrest Lumber Company, surveyed the growing population of that progressive community some years ago, he was distressed by the lack of spiritual sanctuary for the people. And so, from one man's thoughtful concern a new church, St. Christopher's, was added to the strength of the Anglican diocese.

Drawing his own plans with an unerring sense of beauty, Mr. Stone placed the construction of the building in the hands of a skilled contractor.

ARTISTIC SIMPLICITY

From the siding of the exterior walls to the carefully matched shakes that form the roof, the material used was red cedar with its natural finish retained. Each shake, split and matched with infinite care by an artist of that near-lost art, sweeping to the stark cross on the steeple, joins to create a line of artistic simplicity.

The corner-stone laid by Mrs. Carlton Stone in 1948 dates the young church, but an interesting aspect is the instant impression that the building could be a century old. Framed in an emerald setting of lawns, old trees and shrubs, rustic and with an air of having weathered many seasons, the picture presents a feeling that here is a fragment of a more ancient land.

The congregation steps through the flagstone entrance hall under the heavy door of rough-hewn fir, into the peaceful interior. Here the initiate must catch his breath at the sheer beauty confronting him. From the christening font on the right to the soft light filtering through the stained glass colors of the window above the altar, each fixture, each beam in the lofty ceiling tells its tale of devoted work.

HAND POLISHED

Twelve pews of yellow cedar line the rich, red carpeting leading from the font to the pulpit, both of which are fashioned from maple burl. Retaining their natural contours, the aged grain is hand polished to a soft and glowing gold.

The great beams of the vaulted ceiling are of peeled fir logs, rough-hewn and mellow. Wrought-iron fixtures, skillfully formed by another master craftsman, comprise each hinge, handle and latch that adorn the doors and windows. The same hands designed the intricate lighting fixtures, suspended in scrolled and petalled pattern from the beams. Against the walls the lanterns, formed of the delicately wrought metal, contain shades ingeniously made from simple glass jars, white-painted inside.

In the centre of the "wheel" window above the altar is embedded a small circular pane on which is softly tinted a spray of leaf-entwined dogwood blossom. The green altar cloth throws into relief the softly glowing maple of the symbolic crosses, the candlesticks, vases and Bible stand, all carved with gentle care.

TELLS THE STORY

To the left of the entrance hangs the gold-framed "Legend of St. Christopher." Beautifully illuminated on parchment by the young daughter of the minister, it tells the story of the patron saint of the little parish. Leading the congregational voices in thanksgiving is the Wurilizer single manual organ, personal gift of the founder to his church.

A modern oil-burning system heats the church, the small vestry and the well-equipped church hall, a later addition that lies at right angles to the main building. Here the same siding and rough timbers, the clean architectural lines blend the new building with the old to form the picturesque whole.

Gradually the church was completed, and the finishing touch is the mark of identification, a driftwood post from whose parallel arms is suspended the sign "St. Christopher's Church." Much care must have gone to the selection of the driftwood. Untouched and flowing in natural contours, it complements the general air of charming rusticity.

St. Christopher's was dedicated on Aug. 12, 1951, and has become a memorial to Carlton Stone, who passed away soon after the completion of the church. But he lived to participate in the christening of five of his grandchildren at the maple font of his church and to see his great dream become a reality.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Quadra at Mason Oliver Stout Organist and Choir Director Church School:

Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, OCT. 22, 1955 19

At least one group of Victoria women is taking the "do-it-yourself" slogan seriously. They've joined a new night school class, sponsored by the Greater Victoria School Board, that guarantees among other things, to teach those interested how to weatherstrip the windows, repair a leaking hot water tank and, if necessary install kitchen cabinet locks. Instruction is also being given in how to cut glass and glaze a window, repair a garden hose, clean a clogged drain pipe, replace fuses, fix and adjust locks and repair electrical equipment.

Leslie B. Matthews, industrial arts instructor at Mt. View High School, is in charge. The class meets every Wednesday in the metal work shop at Central Junior High School. A maximum of 20 members was asked for the new class and the quota was filled in a matter of hours. Nine women joined.

A keen eye, steady hand and firm grip are needed in the art of glass cutting. Instructor Matthews (second from left), tells an interested group of "do-it-yourself" students. Miss L. Primrose is welding the glass-cutter with determination and skill. The new class has proved so popular it is certain to be repeated next year.

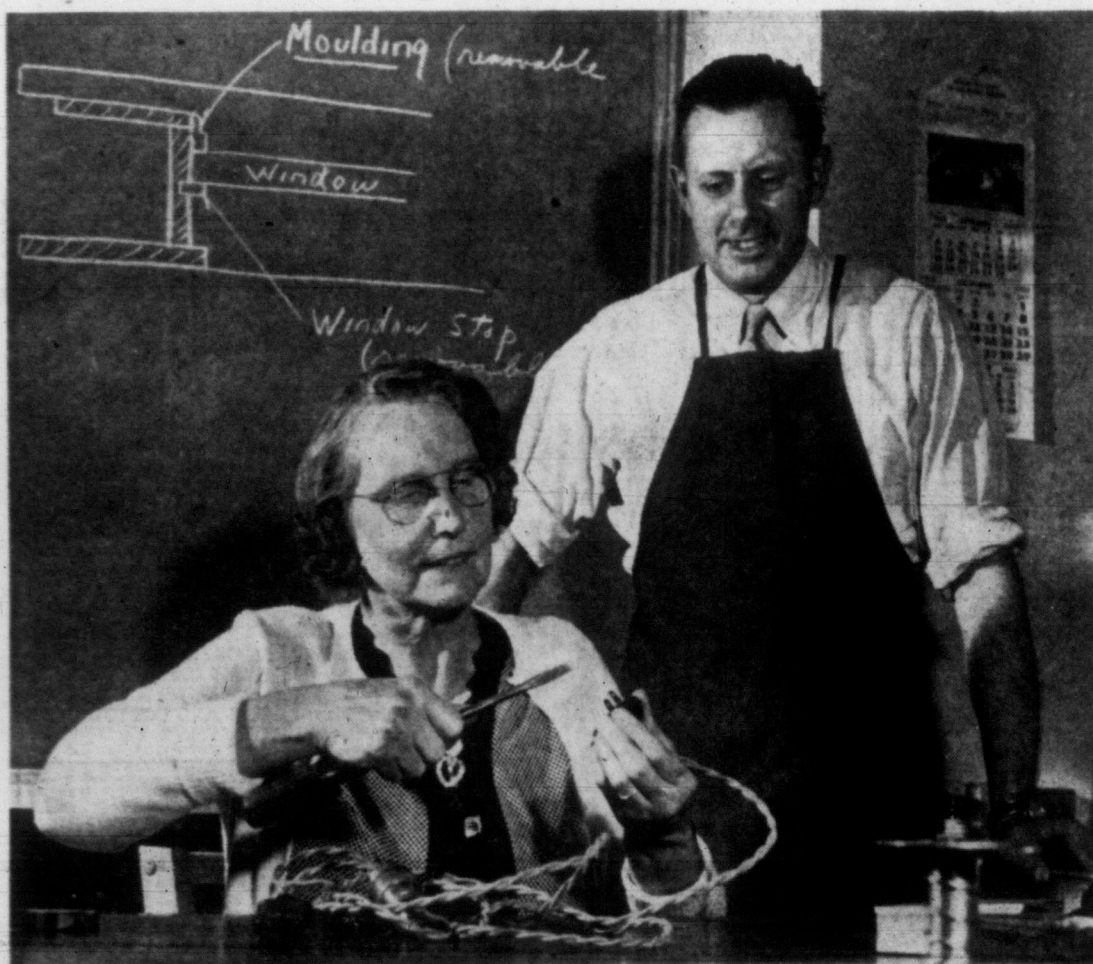

Miss Dorothy Edney is interested in the "do-it-yourself" idea because she wishes to be able to make repairs in her own home when they are needed, and this perhaps is the reason that would be given by each one of the nine women who have joined the class.

Miss Marjorie Baird, left, recently retired superintendent of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, concentrates on cutting a length of pipe with the assistance of Mrs. S. Folks.

Light cords, plugs and switches are going to be in perfect shape in Mrs. W. Wolfe's home after she has completed her apprenticeship with instructor Matthews. Already Mrs. Wolfe handles a screwdriver with all the aplomb of a mechanic of many years' experience.

Mrs. Frank Salter, left, will no doubt burn her fingers if she holds them so close to the soldering iron... but she'll soon get the proper approach and then she'll be expert in stopping leaks and mending pipes. Watching with great interest is Miss V. Fisher, who is also learning the "inside story" of a soldering iron.

Give Cosy Puppet Mitts To Warm Kiddies' Hearts

By PENNY SAVER

They're mittens! They're puppets! The children will love them. In bright colors to please any youngster, these mitts are hand-knitted right here in Victoria. Shaped out are the thumb and little finger, and the rest is a mitten. The two shaped portions have pink tips, and are the hands of a doll pattern. Hair, a hat, a smiling face, and coat, complete with buttons—are all in the design. Each pair is a little different. By moving the hands, the dolls become alive and dance and act when and wherever the child wishes. They're such soft, warm wool, too. Puppet mitts in all children's sizes, for $3.49 a pair. They're new and attractive.

Truly a princess' carriage is the dainty, regal one I saw. It's about eight inches high, and is made of lightweight, gold plastic. The sides are of clear plastic, forming windows. There are the scrolled rims and carved sides, just like a real royal carriage. The spoked wheels are carved, too. On top, is a crown, which forms a handle. Lift the lid, peek inside, and you'll see, sitting in the place of honor, a bottle of perfume. "Proclaim," new this season. Even on the lid of the bottle, which is a bright gold, is a crown. Once the perfume is gone, the very delightful carriage may be used as a trinket and small jewelry case. How much? Just $1.98.

Girls in Victoria are always looking for tights for skating, dancing and sports. Now you can buy stretchy ones that will always fit perfectly. These tights don't stop at the ankle. Oh no, they continue right to the tip of your toes. A wool and nylon mixture will cost you $6.95, while all-nylon ones are $9.95. They're in a light, natural shade, to blend with your own coloring.

For the whereabouts of 'any item' mentioned here in the corner, call me at 2-3131. I'll pass on the names of the stores where you may buy them.

Firm Stand Is Needed With Poor Provider

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

When you know what is best, but allow yourself to be persuaded to do just the opposite, you are likely to pay the penalty.

(Q)—"If my husband goes out and spends too much money, he cuts down the weekly amount he gives me for the house and children. When I tell him I haven't enough, it brings an argument or a fight. I often say I will throw him out but then he softens me up and I change my mind. Once I did put him out and for four days he came crying after me. I was too soft and took him back, and now he's up to the same old tricks. I know the children and I would be better off without him, but I never seem able to stand up to him. Does this mean I am weak?"—Mrs. N. S.

(A)—If you are sincerely convinced your husband is a bad influence in your home, then it is a sign of weakness on your part to allow him to change your mind.

However, you may be merely angry at him temporarily, and that is why you change your mind when he changes his behavior. You unquestionably still love him, or his "softness" would leave you cold and have no influence on your decisions.

It is serious to have quarrels and arguments that eventually kill love. It is also serious to have an example of this sort of behavior to your children to see and imitate. Could you not point out to your husband why it is important to have enough money to run the home without getting into an argument?

If you are convinced and give him the alternative—either support you properly or get out. If he does not support you properly, then ask him to leave, regardless of his attempts to "soften" you. Send your problems to Elizabeth Hurlock, in care of this newspaper.

Furs Play Part In Fashion Show

Latest styles from Carol's and Wilkes Furriers at the Oak Bay Junction were presented at a fall fashion show sponsored earlier this week by the Junior Auxiliary to the Victorian Order of Nurses.

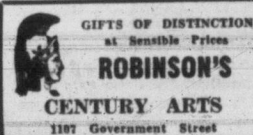

General convenor was Mrs. W. H. Forrest assisted by Mrs. N. G. Colvin and Mrs. E. A. McGowan. Mrs. H. A. Smith was the commentator. Mannequins, all members or friends of the auxiliary were Mrs. Laura Miller, Mrs. Betty Buchanan, Mrs. Mary Jones, Miss Anabel Cranston, Mrs. Mae George, Miss June Harris, Mrs. Queen Murdoch and Mrs. Lilian Mitchell. Background organ music was presented by T. Austin and winner of the door prize was drawn by the auxiliary president, Mrs. Keith Sedgman.

Fashion presentations included daytime and evening ensembles for the average figure from smartly styled coats for Victoria's blustery winter weather to dramatic afternoon and evening gowns. Accessories were not forgotten and the second half of the show illustrated how the classic or basic dress can be transformed by hat, bags, gloves or furs.

Taste Is As Important As Typing—When you read this column I'll be on my way to Hawaii for a month of sunshine. Wish you were with me but as that is impossible I'll have to tell you all about it when I come home. Now . . . to the business of fashions.

If you have ever had occasion to go from one business to another to call on the owner, manager or man in charge, you will in all probability have had to pause and speak to his secretary. Your impression of the business as a whole is sometimes formed by the clever, alert, well groomed woman who is often receptionist as well as secretary.

Being a secretary can mean a lot of glamor and fun, along with work. It can be exciting and rewarding, as most girls will tell you when they're not groaning about the overtime. But few career women, aside from professional models, need to be as mindful of their looks and etiquette as a secretary does. It's part of her job to make a good impression for her boss.

Be gracious and charming, even when most tired, and an ornament in good taste to the organizations. Secretaries aren't young and glittery any more consistently than salespeople are. But the smart ones, young and old, tend their appearances carefully.

Though a boss may admire the siren waiting for the elevator, he does not want his secretary to be one. Conservative clothes, with whatever touch of style she may choose, are best for a secretary. Her necklines should not embarrass callers. If she has a flair, she may wear a flower on a suitable dress, but never last night's corsage. Her nails are clean and short enough for good typing.

Posture and general carriage around the office can make or break morale and efficiency. The posture taught in secretarial schools is not some iron-bound Victorian whim. It looks best and also prevents 5 o'clock fatigue. Incidentally, if her chair is wrong or typing table a bad height, a secretary owes it to her boss to ask for and get equipment she can work with well and comfortably.

A secretary may take dictation and transcribe a letter about her boss' son's camp clothes, but he still has a right to any privacy he desires. He may have a skeleton in the closet no more important than arch supports, but he has a right to that secret. A good secretary leaves the room if her boss receives a personal call and she never opens the mail marked personal unless she has been specifically instructed to watch for some letter.

Individual dignity commands and awards the right of separation, however dependant a boss may be on his gal in the outer office. This is pretty close to being the touchstone of a good secretary.

Mat Exercises, Walking, Good, Free Health Aids

Beauty care need not be expensive. Health diets can be economical if you know how to plan them. Sunshine and deep breathing are free, simple exercises which can be done at home, and there is no luxury tax on sleep, although it is a great luxury!

Exercise is such an essential to vital living that it should be a regular part of life. But it is difficult for some people to make exercise a part of each day.

The daily, brisk walk is splendid outdoor exercise. Its length can be planned to fit the energy of each individual. If small children keep you at home then do some mat exercises.

Actually, mat exercises and the walk serve different purposes. It would be nice if you could work both of these into your daily life. Do not be deceived by the thought that you get enough exercise doing your

Family Wedding Tiara Worn By Friday Evening's Bride

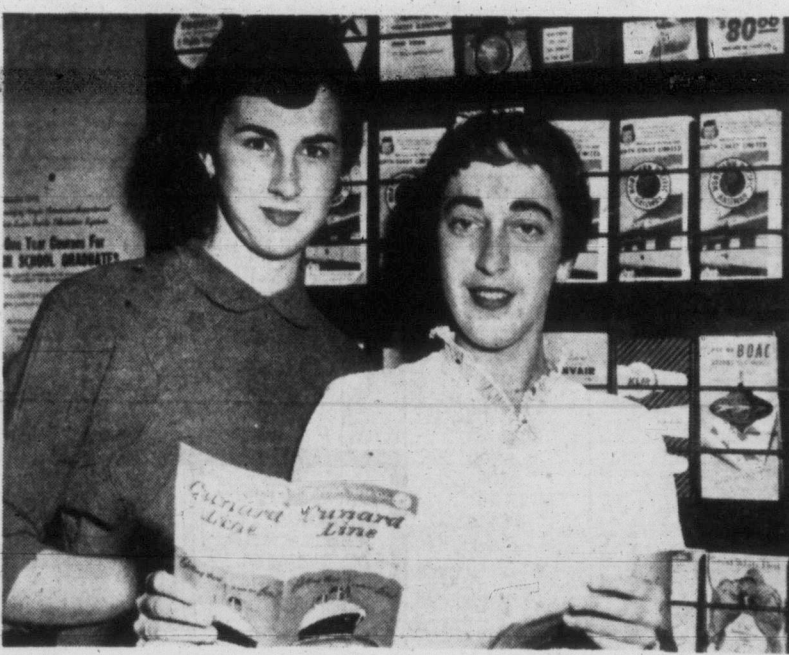

A tiara of orange blossoms and seed pearls worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day was also worn by Miss Sylvia Kornela Slusarenko to complement her bridal ensemble. Friday evening, when she exchanged wedding vows with Gary Charles Jones in Centennial United Church. Rev. Douglas B. Carr officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Slusarenko, 1170 Hilda Street. Baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and mauve daisies were placed in the church for the ceremony. Mrs. F. Wilmshurst played traditional organ music. Given in marriage by her father, the lovely, dark-haired bride was gowned in a floor-length dress of white nylon tulle appliqued with clover-patterned lace. Her jacket was of Chantilly lace, and was fashioned with lily point sleeves and a stand-up collar. The family wedding tiara held a fingertip veil of illusion net. She wore crystal earrings and necklace also worn by her mother on her wedding day and her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses and white chrysanthemums. Miss Sonia Slusarenko was maid of honor for her sister, and chose a crystalline blue paper taffeta gown in cocktail length. The bodice was embroidered with beads and seed pearls. She wore a pink hat, and pink accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and dark rose-tinted mums. Miss Donna Buffle was bridesmaid and Mrs. R. Wright, bridesmatron, in light blue paper taffeta dresses in cocktail length. They wore blue accessories and carried bouquets of pink carnations and white mums. Walter Bradshaw was best man, and Victor Jones, Jr., and Donald Munro ushered guests to

Looking Ahead to European Journey

"We'll soon be on our way," might easily be the thought of Miss Lois Vidal, left, and Miss Lois Burns. The girls will leave Victoria on Oct. 30 for Montreal, from where they will sail aboard Ss. Saxonia on Nov. 4 for Liverpool. They will visit Egham, Surrey, where they will be guests of Mrs. C. Hunt, mother of Mrs. J. Mowbray, the former Miss Elizabeth Hunt, of Victoria, who was married recently. Later, they will travel to Baden-oos Soellinger, Germany, to spend Christmas with Miss

Plaxton-Morgan Wedding Vows This Morning in Oak Bay Church

The east and the west of Canada were united by this morning's simple and beautiful wedding of Miss Antonia Louise Morgan of Victoria and Mr. George Faribault Plaxton of Toronto. The nuptial mass, said by Father M. J. McNamara in the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, was for the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lloyd Morgan of Victoria and the son of Hon. Charles Percy Plaxton, retired justice of the High Court of Justice of Ontario, and Mrs. Plaxton of Toronto. All white flowers and greenery were banded on the high altar with the lighted tapers. The petite, dark-haired bride walked up the aisle on her father's arm, and wore a model gown of pure white silk, ballerina-length, trimmed with seed pearls. It was fashioned with a long bodice, full skirt, cut on simple classic lines, with tiny buttons down the back. The elbow-length sleeves were slightly puffed. Her chapel-length veil was held by a head dress of seed pearls, and the bridal bouquet was cascading white roses and fern. Two junior attendants, the bride's nieces, Miss Gretchen and Miss Erika Morgan of Seattle, wore identically designed dresses of pleated nylon over taffeta. Gretchen wore pink with powder blue accessories, and Erika powder blue with pink accessories. Lloyd Morgan, Jr., of Seattle was best man and ushers were Rodney Poisson, Frank Taylor and James K. Nesbitt. At the signing of the register, Master John Allan, with Mrs. Wanda Gill at the organ, sang Schubert's "Ave Maria." Following the service, the bride's parents gave a reception at their Pemberton Road home, "The Priory," where the receiving line formed in the stained-glass window embrasure, beneath white wedding bells and satin streamers. Reception rooms were massed with autumn flowers and greenery. The bride and groom were piped from their car to the porch by Master Jamie Troy, in full kilts. Mrs. Morgan received in a gown of lavender silk and wool, panelled in lace, and her model hat was of purple velvet pantries. The bride's grandmothers were in the receiving line, Mrs.

Mrs. A. C. Deeks, president of Mrs. Playfair, Christmas cards; St. Joseph's Hospital Alumnae, welcomed guests to the annual bridge and tea held Wednesday in the R. Kersey, decorated cake raffie. Nurses' Residence. More than $200 was realized. Baskets of purple and mauve Michaelmas daisies, goldenrod and Bebe Royal dahlias were arranged in the auditorium for the afternoon. Presiding at the candlelit tea table which was covered with a hand-crocheted, ecru lace cloth and centred by an arrangement of pink, deep rose and pale yellow chrysanthemums, were Mrs. C. H. O'Halloran, Mrs. J. Stuart Keate, Mrs. Courtney Haddock and Mrs. A. J. Brunet. Student nurses assisted in serving. Mrs. M. I. Grant, tea convener, and Mrs. G. F. Rose, who was in charge of bridge arrangements, assisted in receiving guests. A home cooking stall was in charge of Mrs. F. R. Diment, Mrs. A. J. Reid and Mrs. Jack Welch. Others in charge of arrangements were Mrs. W. W. McLuhan, Mrs. Eric Boak and

4-H GROUP TO TOUR CITY ON MONDAY

Governor Hosts Young Farmers

British Columbia's youngest farmers will be visiting Victoria Monday.

Fourteen delegates of 4-H Clubs, the national farm organization for youths, will tour the city and will be entertained by the provincial government for the day.

Delegates are all experts in some phase of farming and are group leaders in their respective communities. They include boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 18 years.

Among the delegates is Helmut Fandrich of Vernon, who has been selected by Agricultural Minister W. K. Kiernan to represent the province in the T. Eaton scholarship contest for 1955 at the Royal Agricultural Fair in Toronto next week. The winner is awarded a four-year university scholarship.

The young visitors will be taken on tours of the Legislative Buildings, Provincial Museum and HMC Dockyard.

They will also be the guests of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and Mrs. Ross at a luncheon at Government House.

The delegates will leave for Vancouver Monday night where they will be entertained Tuesday by civic officials.

Delegates include Louise Josephine Gollits, Armstrong; Brian Lee, Midway; Evelyn Fraser, Chilliwack; Edward Laking Berry, Langley Prairie; John Kennedy McFaul, Sardis; Thomas L. Spragg, Armstrong; Kenneth Ramsey, Armstrong; Dorene Schobert, Doe River; Jack Such, Doe River; Betty Marie Anderson, Matsqui; Lorne McConnell, Armstrong; Edwiese Marlene Bartels, Moose Heights; Wayne Dale Smith, Armstrong.

Russian Try To Pin Blame On U.S. Fails

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The western powers rejected Russian efforts Friday to blame the United States for failure to reach a disarmament agreement. And the west opposed any United Nations debate on arms reduction prior to the Geneva foreign ministers' conference.

Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev attempted to pin responsibility for the failure of arms talks on the United States in a meeting of the 12-nation UN disarmament commission. The meeting had been summoned at his demand.

"There is a definite possibility of agreement on the basic questions of disarmament," Sobolev said. But he said agreement did not occur because presidential aide Harold E. Stassen reserved the position of the United States in the recently concluded meetings of the five-nation disarmament subcommittee.

A U.S. spokesman issued a statement saying that Washington "is ready to move ahead on a program of arms limitation just as soon as a workable and effective plan for inspection control can be agreed to."

FORMER VICTORIA ALDERMAN John Worthington points to ice age marks scratched by glaciers in the crest of Mount Tolmie. He fears that suggested development of the mountain top as a tourist attraction might require blasting of the rock face to permit additional parking area. "These things should be preserved for the tourists, not destroyed," he states. The new project is being considered at present by Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks Committee. Chamber of Commerce approved the plan Friday after chairman of the chamber's tourist trade group, Max Zabel, said that for less than $10,000 the summit could be leveled to provide parking for 30 to 40 cars and an area made available for a tearoom concession. TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile)
A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days)
C (To put in time)

(OSCAR CLASS) "TRIAL" (Royal)—MGM's black and white, flat, low-keyed "Trial" surely must be considered a definite threat for Academy Award honors. It is about as excellent a show as one could hope to see this year or any other year.

The plot, in brief: Glenn ("Blackboard Jungle," "The Big Heat") Ford is a professor of law but wants to practice. He is duly accepted into a law firm headed by Arthur Kennedy and his secretary, Dorothy McGuire.

Headquarters is a small U.S. town where there is an unwanted element of naturalized Mexicans. Ford's first case is to defend young Mexican Rafael Campos, charged with the murder of one of the town's well-to-do families.

BELIEVING IN THE BOY'S story, and in spite of the town's growing hostility and lynch talk, Ford carefully prepares his case. Then to his consternation it dawns upon him that the case against young Rafael is being rigged. There is the colored judge (Juan Hernandez), who is expected to be against; the boy on color grounds; there are the would-be jurors with axes to grind and so on. But Ford doesn't fully awaken to what he is up against until he is called by Kennedy to attend a people's rally in New York, which has been organized to raise funds for the defence of Rafael. In the yelling and cheering and the waving banners he sees that Kennedy and those ostensibly backing him are nothing but followers of the Communist Party. He also discovers that Miss McGuire (with whom he has fallen in love) is also "tainted."

IN SPITE OF ALL THESE things Ford does well with the case against the manoeuvrings of district attorney, the late John Hodiak. But suddenly the party demands that the boy be made a martyr of for the party's sake and demands that he die.

As one can guess, it is a compound-complex plot. It contains race, color prejudice, Communism and power politics. Because of this it keeps one on the edge of one's seat possibly better than any picture of 1955.

It is not too much to suppose that Katy Juado, as the boy's mother, will once again be nominated for a supporting Academy Award. It could be that Dorothy McGuire may be nominated too, also Kennedy, who plays his role of ruthless lawyer in a manner that sets the teeth on edge. And if Glen Ford is nominated, this column will say, "and high time, too."

PENINSULA PLAYERS REPEAT PLAY TONIGHT

The Peninsula Players of North Saanich will repeat an enjoyable performance tonight of "The Holly and the Ivy," at North Saanich High School, following presentation in the school Friday.

In the Players' first production of the season cast and play were well worth seeing, and a similar offering is expected this evening.

Highest commendation was due to Joan Hendriksen for her difficult role as "Margaret Gregory." Others in the cast turning in most credible performances were Frank Watts, Eve Gray, Muriel Smith, Jim Logan, David Smart, Jean Christie and others.

Russia Delaying Disarmament—Martin

'All or Nothing' Attitude Scored
At UN by Canadian Health Minister

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's Health Minister Paul Martin Friday accused Russia of delaying disarmament progress by refusing to accept President Eisenhower's arms inspection plan.

He charged the Russians with saying in effect that unless full agreement can be reached now on disarmament, "we should be content to do nothing."

Every member of the 12-country disarmament commission except Russia agreed that this was not the time for a full-dress debate, and they smothered a Soviet demand that one be held.

Arkady Sobolev, Soviet delegate, attempted to have the commission meet again next Wednesday, but nobody supported him and he did not press the demand. The committee adjourned with agreement that the next meeting date be set by the chairman. Sobolev becomes chairman Nov. 1 and is expected to call a meeting soon after he takes the chair.

Martin's favorable references to the Eisenhower plan brought an expression of thanks from U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, who spoke after the health minister.

Turning towards Martin, Lodge said he felt sure the minister's words would have "a profound effect."

Martin said it was encouraging that there is at least partial agreement "in some areas of the problem facing us." Though Canada

"I'VE GOT NEWS FOR YOU!"

The Newspaper Brings You the Full Story; Without Which Knowledge Life Would Not Be Complete!

There is good news and bad news, important news and unimportant news. There is news that marks the ending of a happy life, and news that marks the beginning of a life that may be the answer to some of the world's problems.

A newspaper records the good and the bad, the important and frequently the unimportant.

A newspaper judges the value of the news on the basis of its importance and how many people are affected. A newspaper would like to print only the good news. But one that printed only the news of good events, of pleasant subjects, of constructive acts, would not give a true picture of life. For life is not all good, not all pleasant, not all constructive.

And that is the ultimate aim of every good newspaper—to give an accurate, complete and fair account of the daily events in the world and of the people around us.

FOR VICTIMS ONLY

Ottawa to Contribute $300,000 Flood Aid

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has decided to put up about $300,000 to cover "disaster" relief for Saskatchewan and Manitoba flood victims, federal officials said Friday.

The Saskatchewan government estimated last spring that the total loss through the floods would total about $50,000,000—a figure which included anticipated crop losses.

The current federal allocation is to cover the federal share in splitting with the provinces the cost of reimbursing residents for roughly 80 per cent of individual property losses.

The formula for payment will be similar to that used in reimbursing Ontario residents whose property was damaged by hurricane Hazel last year.

Officials said the current federal aid will not cover damage to roads, bridges and other municipal and provincial works. This will be dealt with later.

Under the formula the individual flood victim would absorb the first $100 of damages to his land and property. The federal and provincial governments would split costs covering 80 per cent of the remaining damage in excess of $100, but imposing a ceiling of $5,000 as the most that can be paid out on each household hit by the floods last spring.

The federal payments will be on the basis of "disaster relief." Requests by the two provinces for federal control aid and for help in mending bridges and roads will be considered at some future date, officials said.

Most of the damage is reported to have been in Saskatchewan, the big wheat-growing province.

toba and Saskatchewan flood victims was generally "acceptable."

He described the federal plan as a move at "standardizing" disaster relief payments on a hurricane Hazel basis.

Margaret Goes to Windsor With Queen For Week-End

LONDON (UP) — Princess Margaret went back to Windsor Castle tonight to join her sister, the Queen, for a family week-end that may result in a decision on her romance with Peter Townsend.

The Windsor get-together will give Margaret her first chance to discuss Townsend privately with Queen Elizabeth since she started dating the handsome divorced air hero publicly nine days ago.

Only last night, the princess met with Townsend until 1 o'clock in the morning at the home of a friend in London.

This evening, the 41-year-old Townsend called on the princess at Clarence House before she left for Windsor Castle.

Margaret has seen the handsome group captain steadily for more than a week. Each succeeding date increased the belief they will marry.

ANNOUNCEMENT TUESDAY?

It was generally speculated that next Tuesday, when Parliament reconvenes, would be the most likely day for an announcement on the romance.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh went to Windsor Castle earlier today leaving Margaret behind to inaugurate a new church community centre on London's east side.

'Public Fed Up With Guesses on Romance'

LONDON (AP)—Lt.-Col. Marcus Lipton, Labor member of Parliament, today demanded that the government put an end to the Princess Margaret-Peter Townsend guessing game.

"The public," Lipton said in an interview, "is getting fed up with this long drawn out business."

"Apparently they love one another and if someone is holding up a marriage, then let him say so. It may be the Church, or somebody else. But anyhow, let's stop all this guessing."

When Parliament reassembles Tuesday, Lipton is going to ask Prime Minister Eden "whether he will introduce legislation to repeal or amend the Royal Marriage Act of 1727."

"The present government says it believes in freedom from controls. If it does, then it should abolish the out of date controls still exercised by the Royal Marriage Act."

The act forbids any member of the Royal Family under 25 years old from marrying without the sovereign's permission. After 25, the Royal Family member must give a year's notice to Parliament. Should Parliament disapprove, any marriage would be null and void.

Princess Margaret was 25 last August.

Saar Battens Down For Crucial Vote

(From UP and AP Dispatches) SAARBRUECKEN—The troubled Saar sealed off its frontiers to the outside world today and mobilized its entire police force to guard against disorders in Monday's crucial referendum.

Leaders of both factions favoring and opposing the proposed internationalization of the coal and steel rich territory came out with final passionate appeals to voters this morning.

Border guards slammed down frontier barriers at noon (7 a.m. EDT) even as the final campaign appeals were being made. The barriers will stay down until Monday morning.

The voters, after three months of incessant campaign oratory, will write simply "ja" or "nein" on their ballots. But the result will determine the fate of a proposal by the seven-power Western European Union to "Europeanize" this little territory tucked in between France and Germany.

If the majority vote is yes, the Saar will become the first embodiment of a united Europe—a tiny national state with a population of 950,000 in the industrial heart of western Europe.

The Saar would continue its close economic ties, including a customs union, with France and control its own internal government. But foreign relations and defence would pass from France to a neutral high commissioner appointed by the WEU.

WOULD CONTINUE TIES

If the voters say no, the status quo will continue. That means political autonomy but close economic ties with France.

It also would mean a customs and currency barrier between the German-speaking Saarlanders and other Germans living just across the eastern frontier.

Premier Johannes Hoffman told meetings of parties favoring Europeanization that both West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay want the voters to say "ja" to launch a united Europe.

Meanwhile, the rapid-fire oratory of Heinrich Schneider, pro-German leader and a former Nazi, has sparked latent nationalist feelings.

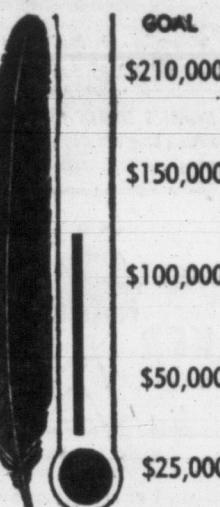

Many who might have voted "ja" for Europe may vote "nein" against Hoffmann who, after eight years in office, is viewed by many as a "pro-French puppet."

Welsh Soccer Team Upsets England 2-1

LONDON (Reuters) — An underdog Welsh team, playing with tremendous drive, today downed favored England 2-1 in an international soccer match.

(SEE SCORES, PAGE 3)

Playing at Cardiff, the Welsh team jumped to a 2-0 halftime advantage and was never threatened. England's lone goal came when a Welsh player bounced the ball into his own net.

In Scotland, Aberdeen won the Scottish League Football Cup with a 2-1 victory over St. Mirren.

In English League play, Blackpool, without Stanley Matthews who was playing in the international match, fell from the First Division lead as they lost to Sheffield United 2-1.

Cashier Faints After Hold-Up in Noon-Hour Rush

A dapper gunman, taking advantage of noon-hour crowds, today robbed the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. ticket office of at least $250.

At press time, the bandit was still at large.

He fitted the description of the gunman who robbed the Empress Hotel on Oct. 11.

Miss Joan Griston, ticket seller, said the hold-up man worked very quietly and appeared to be holding a gun under his coat.

"Hand over the money," were the first words spoken by the swarthy complexioned robber.

Miss Griston told Times reporters: "He thrust a paper bag at me and I filled it with the bills from the cash drawer."

"I tried to give him just the ones and twos, but he said 'Give me it all.'"

Miss Griston fainted right after the hold-up.

The gunman grabbed the bag and left—losing himself in the crowded district.

A newsstand operator, Mrs. Lyl Stewart, 1329 George, in the bus stand, directly opposite the ticket office, said she had just stepped out when the hold-up occurred.

"I don't think I was out for more than three minutes. When I came back it was all over."

Several people sitting in the waiting room didn't notice the hold-up.

Dorothy Jossel, in information booth five feet away, didn't know anything was wrong until Miss Griston collapsed, and fainted, after bandit got money and left.

Witnesses gave this description of the gunman: He was wearing colored glasses, brown jacket, khaki bone-dry-type cap. He had dark hair and a swarthy complexion. He had a slim build.

His age was estimated at between 25 and 30 years. His height is five feet eight to 10 inches.

A Coach Lines worker said she saw the same man loitering around the depot Friday.

B.C. Employees Demand Probe On Bargaining

Royal Commission New Goal Of Thwarted Civil Servants

B.C. civil servants today demanded appointment of Royal Commission to investigate bargaining procedure for provincial government employees.

Delegates attending the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention here passed a resolution calling on the cabinet to appoint a royal commission.

They said a commission should "investigate the unsatisfactory procedure in effect for government employees with the view to establishing a regulated bargaining procedure."

The resolution said civil servants, through their recognized bargaining agent, the BCGEA, have "unsuccessfully strived to gain a form of arbitration."

REFUSAL

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has given a categorical "no" to every former request for arbitration procedure.

"This may be going through the back door, asking for a commission, but it is at least a new approach," said one delegate.

Dennis Heinekey of Victoria said previous demands had called for "arbitration or nothing. We don't believe we can get arbitration."

"It's a matter of—do we want to continue to batter our heads against the wall, or try something with a hope of success?" Delegates did not elaborate on what was meant by "regulated bargaining procedure."

There was some talk of a joint cabinet-association group similar to that in force in Alberta.

The resolution said the association "contends that the Civil Service Act does not grant any form of arbitration rights to employees of the Crown, and only the right of appeal to the Lieutenant-Governor in council, the very persons who have denied our requests."

The resolution also recalled the Ash committee report recommended regulated bargaining procedure for B.C.'s 10,000-member civil service.

THROWN OUT

A section of the resolution calling for "a relentless campaign" for bargaining procedure was thrown out by the convention.

At present civil servants' final appeal on wage demands is to the provincial cabinet, which sets the wages.

In other convention business, Carl Hauck, New Westminster, was defeated in a bid for a fifth term as association president.

J. F. Christian, Vancouver, won on first ballot.

J. F. Murrell, Chilliwack, was re-elected first vice-president, and Miss Joan Gower, Victoria, and Miss Joan Gower, Victoria, (Continued on Page 28)

BATHTUB SAILOR STARTS FOR VICTORIA; ASKS WAY

Bathtub Mariner Roy Berge, a non-swimmer who scorns compasses left Port Angeles at 10 a.m. today, headed for Victoria in a thick fog.

His last remark to shoreside watchers at Ediz Hook was "Which way does Victoria lie?" The water, it is reported, was calm.

He was to be accompanied half way by U.S. tug, Omar Foss and was expected here by 4 p.m. At noon he was reported five miles from the U.S. shore.

Aldermen Call For New Chief

Mulligan's 'Fire Me' Plea
Stirs Vancouver Action Demand

VANCOUVER (CP)—Four Vancouver aldermen today called on the city police commission to meet without delay and accept Chief Constable Walter Mulligan's request that he be relieved of his position.

The aldermen said the dismissal of Chief Mulligan, chief constable for 8½ years, and the appointment of a new chief would end turmoil at police headquarters and lift the morale among the men.

They said turmoil had existed ever since Commissioner R. H. Tupper opened his prolonged probe four months ago into alleged corruption and laxity in the 750-man police force.

Chief Mulligan, 51, in a letter to the police commission Friday, asked that he be dismissed because "my former usefulness... is ended" by the admission of hearsay evidence at the police probe.

Mr. Mulligan's letter said he would rather be discharged.

Daring Gunman Gets $300 in Raid on VICL Ticket Office

Off-duty detectives were recalled to bolster city police force in an intensive search this afternoon for an armed bandit who robbed a Vancouver Island Coach Lines Ltd. ticket sales clerk of $250 at 12.30 noon.

Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer threw every available officer into the hunt for the robber who was described:

Between 25 and 30 years, slight build, dark complexion, about five foot eight to 10, wearing khaki "bone dry" hat, brown jacket, and green lens sunglasses.

The robbery, similar to a raid on the Empress Hotel coffee shop Oct. 11 when $285 was scooped into a paper bag by a lone gunman, ran smoothly.

People sitting in the bus depot waiting room did not notice the bandit approach the ticket wicket of Miss Joan Griston, 1046 Clare, menace her with a gun, and walk away with between $250 and $300 in a paper bag he thrust at her.

Nor did Mrs. Dorothy Jossul, cashier in an adjoining office who was only about five feet away from Miss Griston.

She did not notice anything wrong until Miss Griston collapsed as the bandit quietly walked away.

Outside police departments were maintaining a watch on outgoing traffic and RCMP officers were ready to set up road blocks on the Island Highway.

The ticket seller became hysterical but she was able to tell The Times, minutes after the robbery, how the bandit operated:

"He pushed a paper bag through the wicket toward me," she related between sobs.

"His first words were 'hand over the money' and he seemed to have a gun under his coat which he pointed toward me."

"I tried to give him just the one and two-dollar bills and he warned me: 'Give me it all'."

"I shoved in the other bills and he took the bag and walked away."

The robbery was timed well. Mrs. Lyl Stewart, clerk in the Coach Lines newsstand about 20 feet away from the ticket wickets, said she would have noticed anything amiss and could have given an alarm.

But, she said, the robber apparently waited until she stepped into a back room of the newsstand.

"I was only gone about three minutes. It was all over when I returned," she said.

Police think the bandit may have been responsible not only for the Empress Hotel robbery, but theft of $350 from the Monterey restaurant on Oct. 8.

In the restaurant raid, a lone gunman described as much older than the man in the Empress Hotel and Coach Lines robberies, worked swiftly.

Other characteristics of the bandit matched and police think he may have disguised himself to appear much older. He was dubbed the "grease paint bandit."

Donations are better than an inhalator, when it's th' Community Chest y're tryin' t' fill.
